Simon calls for more business investment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said today the government must place more emphasis on encouraging business investment and curb growth in such programs as social security, welfare and government payrolls.

Warning that "some margin of economic slack must remain for a period of years to insure that inflation can be squeezed out gradually," Simon said the eventual return to economic stability depends on growth in the nation's productive capacity.

"We are not providing adequate incentives for new investment," he said in testimony prepared for the Joint Economic Committee of Congress. "It is not unfair to say that we are in a profits depression in this country."

Corporate profits were up by 71 per cent in face value last year, Simon said, but after adjusting the increase for inflation, profits actually declined by 50 per cent.

Profits provide the money for new investment and expanded productive capacity, Simon said. "Yet, as a nation, we are rapidly expanding public payments to individuals but neglecting to provide adequate incentives for new investment."

Public payments to individuals include social security, government payrolls and retirement benefits, which contain cost-of-living clauses which President Ford has proposed capping as a spending curb.

Simon said the current recession will probably wind up as the worst since World War II, but "I think there is no prospect whatsoever of a long and deep economic downturn on the scale of the 1930s."

President Ford's economists admit they have been caught by surprise by the extent of the nation's sharp recessions and say future predictions are subject to "an unusually wide margin of error."

Chairman Alan Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisers made the admission Tuesday as Ford sent Congress an economic message that declared, "The economy is in a serious recession."

Ford's advisers say their predictions were off base in part because automobile sales slumped badly in the fourth quarter of 1974 and the auto industry was "in a state of collapse."

Commission takes oath

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Samuel B. Murphy, a Kirkwood attorney, was elected chairman of the Missouri Election Commission today, during the first meeting of the agency which is to enforce the state's new Campaign Practices Act.

The six-member commission was sworn in by Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert T. Donnelly after Gov. Chrisotpher S. Bond told the members there job was to see to it that "performance meets the promise of the law."

The act which took effect Jan. 1, was approved by a nearly 4-1 margin in a statewide petition drive last year. The law requires strict campaign contribution and spending reporting from all candidates.

Sikeston attorney David Blanton was chosen vice chairman and Dr. Robert F. Karsch of Columbia was named secretary. The other members of the comission are Edmund A. Bohl Jr. of Harrisonville, D.W. Gilmore of Kansas City and Frank E. Nutt of Kirkwood.

The six commissioners were chosen by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. Bond made his selections from a list furnished by the Supreme Court.

Bridge victim still missing

DYERSBURG, Tenn. — The Dyer County Sheriff's office said today the body of a man who fell from the Mississippi River Bridge near Caruthersville, Mo. into the Mississippi River about 4 p.m. Sunday has still not been recovered.

According to Sheriff John N. Cribbs, the first fatality at the Bridge site happened while several persons were nearby. Ray Wendell, about 40, of rural Dyersburg, was walking across a span on the upper level of the bridge, on the Tennessee side, and then moved to a lower level. A Dyersburg newspaper photographer, who was also at the site, took a picture of him. Cribbs said the photographer looked away for a second and when he looked back, Wendell was gone.

Wendell, reportedly, had worked for various contractors on the bridge project.

Sheriff Cribbs said dragging operations were still being conducted and downstream areas where being checked.

Fires damage 2 houses

Fire damaged a second-floor apartment at 214 E. Kathleen Ave. Tuesday afternoon and a home at 228 Alabama St. early today. Both fires damaged bedrooms.

Firemen were called at 2:10 p.m. Tuesday to a two-story apartment building at 214 E. Kathleen Ave. when a fire erupted in a bed in an apartment occupied by Sherman Isbell.

Isbell left the apartment shortly before the fire was discovered. Neighbors told firemen they thought Isbell was still in the building. Firemen searched the apartment twice before satisfying themselves Isbell was not there.

Firemen said the fire damaged the bedroom and smoke damaged another apartment on the second floor.

The building is owned by Charles Mitchell Realty.

A hot water heater is blamed for the fire which gutted a rear bedroom of the Jessie Berry house at 228 Alabama about 4 a.m. today.

Firemen said the fire burned through a wall next to the water heater and spread into the bedroom. There was smoke damage to the rest of the house, firemen said.

Firemen were at the scene for a little more than an hour.

Senate slashes jobless pay hike

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Senate slashed a proposed $25 hike in weekly unemployment compensations by $10 Tuesday, while the House cut a recommended emergency appropriation to establish a University of Missouri optometry school at Weldon Spring.

The Senate approved an amendment which would boost the present $67 a week maximum unemployment benefit to $85, falling short of a Senate committee recommendation that payments be increased to a $95 a week ceiling.

The House Employment Security Committee Tuesday also called for an increase to $95 a week.

But, on the Senate floor, Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood, argued against the higher ceiling, contending it would place a hardship on smaller Missouri businesses which contribute to the fund.

The fund is financed through contributions from employers in the state who pay into it on the basis of wages paid and the number of workers laid off by the firm during a certain period.

Jones said the fund now has $234 million in reserve, but it could be reduced to $88 million if the weekly benefits are boosted to a $95 ceiling with rising unemployment and with moves to extend benefits past the recent expiration period.

Under the current law, unemployed persons are entitled to 4 per cent of their wages paid each quarter, not to exceed $67 a week. The bill introduced by Sen. William Cason, D-Clinton, would raise the ceiling to 5 per cent or $95.

Cason said Missouri ranks 43rd nationally in the amount of unemployment benefits paid unemployed workers. He also asked that the amended bill be placed aside for consideration later, saying he wants time to study it further.

Drug user brings severe problems on himself

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the sixth and final article in a series on drug abuse and the extent of its existence in Southeast Missouri. Results of The Daily Standard's nine-month investigation will not be determined until state and federal officers complete their investigation of information about drug misuse and sale provided by newspaper investigators.)

By RON JAYNES

Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Jim Moore said the majority of drug offenderc are unaware of the severe problems they bring on themselves, not only to their bodies, but also to their life style.

"Most young people realize that if they haven't had a prior offense, they are simply — in their minds — going to get their hands slapped because they will be conficted and placed on probation to continue their education or employment," More pointed out.

Moore has made frequent public talks on the drug problem.

"But, while these youngsters think this has little effect upon them, since they have not had to spend time in jail or the penitentiary, they don't realize that this type of conviction is looked upon by employers and people in many walks of life as a major crime and, therefore, are hesitant to offer them employment or service," the prosecutor said.

"Did you know that, because of a conviction for drug possession, a person would find it extremely hard to become a doctor, dentist, certified public accountant, engineer, lawyer, architect,, Realtor, osteopath, physical therapist, private detective, pharmacist, school teacher, barber, funeral director or stock broker.

"He cannot get a job where he has to be bonded or licensed, probably cannot work for the city, county or federal government and cannot get into West Point, Annapolis or the Air Force Academy. Even though he can enlist in the military service, he will probably be denied his choice of service and be assigned to a labor battalion," Moore emphasized.

He noted that such are consequences not only of a drug conviction, but with any felony. "Many young people don't realize this and they should be made aware of it," he stressed.

The prosecutor said he thinks the drug situation has stabilized over the past two years. "We have had a decline in the harder drugs above marijuana, although they are still present -- especially LSD, speed and other drugs taken in pill form.

"Heroin has not been, to this time, any great problem in our county. I think the young people have realized the dangers that physiological addiction has caused. Most of the other drugs are not physiologically addictive, but they can become psychologically addictive," Moore said.

The drug problem in Scott County and throughout Southeast Missouri centers around the use of marijuana, which many call harmful and others say no concrete proof that it is harmful has been furnished.

The prosecuting attorney, who is perhaps the closest person to the situation, due to his responsibility to prosecute the persons in possession, says persons from 15 to 30 years of age are involved in drug use and that 85 per cent of that age group has tried it or will try it.

Moore said he runs a fairly heavy case load of drug cases, but doesn't know how it compares with other areas.

"The majority of our drug cases are misdemeanors," Moore noted. "Because of the revision of the drug laws which does not talk in terms of drugs or narcotics, but in terms of controlled substances, and makes it a disdemeanor only to possess less than 35 grams of marijuana.

"Most people will have only a rolled cigarette or a 'nickel or dime bag.' This is a $5 or $10 bag of marijuana, which is basicly confined in a 'bagger' or sandwich-type bag."

It takes slightly over one ounce to equal 35 grams.

One of the big problems with marijuana, as it affects the prosecuting attorney's office in that possession is the only charge it can make stick, rather than the use of marijuana.

And, if a suspect can somehow secrete the substance, officers cannot make an arrest even though they can detect the unique smell that the smoking of marijuana gives off.

"It is very easy for an offender to destroy the evidence necessary for a conviction," Moore stated.

"Future prospective employers view persons with convictions of drug possession as a 'drug user' and are very hesitant to employ them," Moore noted.

Many school officials and judges have voiced the same opinion.

Pemiscot County Magistrate Judge Sidney Chaffin of Caruthersville says drug misuse in the lower Bootheel is relatively comparable to other areas of the state.

"We have our problems, but I don't think it's any worse than any other area," Chaffin noted. "It's just a problem everywhere."

Daily Standard investigators have noted that minor sentences and fines have been handed down by judges for drug offenses in every country in Southeast Missouri.

Through further study it has been learned that the reason for this is that the prosecution is generally unable to prepare a solid case for a stiff sentence and therefore settle for a minor one and the hope of discouraging the offender.

In cases where evidence has been sufficient, many persons have received prison sentences.

"Man, all they want is a little cash and they'll let you go..." one offender noted.

The Daily Standard's probe into the drug situation in Southeast Missouri turned up some cases in which drug charges were never filed in some lower Bootheel counties. No reason for this has been determined.

The Daily Standard investigation has revealed that, in general, drug abusers fall into four main groups.

The first group employs drugs for a specific or situational purpose. Examples include the student who uses amphetamines to keep awake at examination time, the housewife who uses anti-obesity pills for additional energy to get through household chores, the salesman who uses amphetamines to keep awake while driving all night to an early morning appointment.

Such individuals may or may not exhibit psychological dependence.

The second group consists of "spree" users,usually of college or high school age. Drugs are used for "kicks" or just to experiment. There may be some degree of psychological dependence, but little or no physical dependence because of the sporadic and mixed pattern of use. Some spree users may only try drugs once or twice and decide there are better things in life.

Drug sprees constitute a defiance of convention, an adventurous daring experience or a means of having fun. Unlike "hard-core" abusers, who often pursue their habits alone or in pairs, spree users usually take drugs in groups or at social functions.

The third category is the "hard-core" addict. His activities revolve almost entirely around drug experience and securing supplies. He exhibits strong psychological dependence on the drug, often reinformed by physical dependence when certain drugs are being used.

Typically, the hard-core addict began drug abuse on a spree basis. He has been on drugs for some time and presently feels

There may be some degree of psychological dependence, but little or no physical dependence because of the sporadic and mixed pattern of use. Some spree users may only try drugs once or twice and decide there are better things in life.

Drug sprees constitute a defiance of convention, an adventurous daring experience or a means of having fun. Unlike "hard-core" abusers, who often pursue their habits alone or in pairs, spree users usually take drugs in groups or at social functions.

The third category is the "hard-core" addict. His activities revolve almost entirely around drug experience and securing supplies. He exhibits strong psychological dependence on the drug, often reinformed by physical dependence when certain drugs are being used.

Typically, the hard-core addict began drug abuse on a spree basis. He has been on drugs for some time and presently feels

HELPING THE COMMUNIST DICTATORSHIP

It is not surprising, we suppose, to read that former Attorney General and recently defeated candidate for the U.S. Senate Ramsey Clark has been the leading figure in a money raising drive to send medical equipment to Communist- occupied North Vietnam. Clark has now established a well recognized track record of criticism against the United States and praise for the enemies of our country. Nor is it surprising to read further that the "co'chairman" of the money raising drive, conducted under the name of the "Bach Mai Fund" of Cambridge, Massachusetts, is one Cora Weiss, whose pro-Communist sympathies have been widely reported in the press.

It is discouraging to note, however, that the "front man" for the Bach Mai Fund, obviously selected for his stature (and hence, money-attracting capability) in the medical profession is an expert radiologist at a well known Massachusetts hospital, but whom we will not embarrass further by mentioning his name here.

And it is also disheartening to learn that, according to Mr. Clark, close to one million dollars has been raised to send medical equipment "to the people of North Vietnam" in the name of "peace and humanity."

Perhaps Mr. Clark has not read the newspapers and hence does not know that the Communists are presently killing and maiming thousands of innocent South Vietnamese men, women and children in wanton attacks upon their homes and villages. Evidently he does not know that there are no hostile armies in North Vietnam, and hence very little call for medical relief. Further, he does not seem to realize that it is highly unlikely that the people of North Vietnam will ever see or benefit by the medical aid. History has established that the Communists everywhere always take what they want for themselves first. Further, in the case of the Communists in North Vietnam, if there are any medical supplies left over, they will probably go to patchup their invading armies on the rampage in South Vietnam.

It is also rumored that a leading United SStates Senator sometimes mentioned as a Presidential possibility was instrumental in arranging the airlifting of the supplies to the Communists. How about it, Jack Anderson? Wouldn't that be a juicy morsel to check into?

Yet, it goes against the grain for many of us when politicians talk about tax reductions by shifting the burden to the higher-income groups. In the first place, there just isn't enough income in the higher brackets to bring much tax relief, even if the rates were made totally confiscatory. Higher-income people do pay a large share of government costs. In 1970, 13 per cent of the nation's individual income tax returns were filed by people with incomes over $15,000 and this 13 per cent supplied 51 per cent of the total individual income tax revenue that year. Rather than looking for more taxes, the politicians should concentrate on less government spending.This is the sound and sensible way to reduce our tax burden.

LIKE WHAT'S HAPPENING AT WASHINGTON

Monroe Countians like what is happening in Congress-the rise of power enough by new members and other dissidents to unseat the chairmen of several important committees, and to by-pass the ancient system of choosing chairmen merely because they have been there longer than anyone else on the committee.

The Seniority rule has too often resulted in the choice of men and women who are either too old or too incompetent.

Only by moves such as those going on in Congress can our legislative arm get a breath of fresh air.

The action encourages everyone to hope that it will not be "business as usual" at Washington, and that there may be considerable improvement there.

HOW'S THAT AGAIN??

The following "greeting" was received from a financial advisory publication which, after reading it several times, we decided to share with Standard readers. Here it is:

"Once more we wish to add our wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year. Our warnings of trouble down the road have largely come to pass, and although we are still in a gloom-and-doom atmosphere, the long term future looks very bright. We are dealing with a number of significant social shifts that require a reordering of economic priorities. At the same time the present course of independent eventys dictates a reordering of priorities. What we will see out of this in the years immediately ahead is a continuation of the dramatic process of change that we have witnessed over the past ten years.

"The perception of change is not easy during the lull between socioeconomic phases, since we are all turned into the leadership of the last phase. However, such a period is rather exciting because more thinking goes into business and investment decisions as well as what we should do with our own lives. Any time of trouble brings about as a reaction the release of our innovative spiritis to translate our natural resources and technology into a better world.

"Sure, we know it is easier to call it quits when one does not like what is going on. A lot has been going on and everybody can find one or more things he does not like. If we all gave up and returned to the womb, not much would be accomplished. We think the diversity and excitement of what is ahead of us ought to keep us busy and active for many decades. We may not come out of each crisis exactly the way we like, but we have the ability to muddle through, to accomplish what needs to be done and to concentrate our brain power for the good of all people.

"So keep in mind that fluctuations in interest rates and stock prices will occur, and that they could be quite sharp, particularly in an atmosphere of increasing instability. Don't, however, become so engrossed in near-term events, problems and fears that you forget the long-pull positive consequences of what is happening. Unrest motivates creative talents, so be cheerfully contrary to an overabundance of disaster news. There is a case for optimism.

"Business moves in long cycles where 'fine tuning' has little effect, and 1975, more than most years, will be easy to explain on exit but rather difficult on entrance. Our emphasis on preservation of capital should be your continuing objective."

OF VESTED INTERESTS AND PUBLIC WELFARE

For three-quarters of the world's four billion people, the slender reeds of the rice plant form the greatest single barrier between nutrition and starvation.

It is a fact of our time that rice crops in the world's major growing area, which are also the areas of fastest population growth, have been unable to keep up with demand. The future looks even more critical as a result of changing weather patterns and soaring ferilizer costs.

Only the United States, which is 11th in the world's ranking of rice producers, remains in a position to export rice. Of the five million tons produced in the United States in 1973, fully 67 per cent of the crop was exported to more than 100 countries.

With two million acres currently under rice cultivation, predominantly in Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Arkansas and California, this year's crop is expected to yield 6.5 million tons, of which more than two-thirds will go to overseas markets.

For a nation allegedly based on waste, it is worth noting that it takes the average American farmer only two man-days of labor to grow and harvest one acre of rice compared with 400 man-days per acre in most of the developing nations, there rice is the staple crop.

According to spokesmen for chemical manufacturers, however, the American farmer faces a major threat to his ability to grow the crops that will meet home demand as well as help ease the crisis in the world's rice bowl.

The threat, they say, is the attack which certain pressure groups have launched against one of the chemicals which have helped give the United States its rice-exporting capability, the pesticide 2, 4, 5-T. This, despite a finding by the Environmental Protection Agency that there is no evidence to support withdrawal of the pesticide.

According to the industry, the drive against 2, 4, 5-T could result in the same kind of thing that happened to cyclamates. Following reports that mice had developed cancer about being fed massive dosese of the artificial sweetening additive, the Food and Drug Administration banned cyclamates in October, 1969.

Since then, the original tests have been called into question by other tests, but the ban continues and Americans are denied the use of a proven sugar substitute at a time when sugar prices have taken off for the sky. Similar "precipitate action: ; against 2, 4, 5-T could cause an even more serious situation.

The pesticide manufacturers, of course, are suspect right from the start. They are in the business of selling chemicals, not feeding the world's hungry or protecting the environment. Farmers have no less an important financial stake. Last year's rice crop had a record valuation of $1.3 billion.

Yet the environmentalists have occasionally seemed to be guided by the philosophy that every manmade produce or process is guilty of causing harm until proven innocent, and have sometimes seemed less than concerned about the long'term economic and human consequences of their actions.

Wherein lies the truth of the matter? What is fact and what is self-interest?

An informed public is vital to the operation of a democracy and to the finding of solutions to the challenges facing it. But the controversy over 2,4,5-T, like so many others involving technology, is an example of its being given the kind of information it is not qualified to assess intelligently.

On the one side are experts, but on the other side are experts also. Caught in the middle are the great mass of people who, in one way or another will be directly affected by the decisions made by those who govern them.

They have not only saved us from extinction in two wars, but they have saved buildings and books that mean much to us. As far as I know the movement has been all one way. XXX

THOSE HIGHER POWER COSTS

For literally pennies a day most of us have, until now, been able to heat our homes, cook our meals, do our washing and use all those other electrical luxuries from toothbrushes to television sets. In short, we have been enjoying a bargain that has brought us not only the necessities of life, but entertainment, leisure and personal comfort as well.

A major electric utility reports that while its rates increased only nine percent from 1962 to 1972, prices of food and other goods and services in its area have, in some cases, risen anywhere from 30 to over 100 percent during that period. For example, butter costs 78 percent more today that a decade ago, tuna fish 42 percent and coffee 72 percent. During this period, the company's costs for materials, equipment and other goods and services have risen as well. Wages are up 78 percent over 10 years ago, taxes have skyrocketed 171 percent and interest rates have climbed 56 percent.

But inflation is not the only factor compelling utility rate increases. Environmental legislation requires electric companies to burn cleaner, more expensive fuels in power plants. In many cases, equipment must be modified in order to burn them. In the years ahead, research to develop new methods of generating electricity will demand hundreds of millions of dollars, and the only source of additional revenue is rate increases.

Utilities ask for rate increases to pay the higher costs of producing electric power. These increased costs of operation are, for the most part, as much beyond the control of electric companies as they are beyond the control of power consumers. Higher power production costs are a fact of life--a fact that must now be reflected in the cost of this service so vital to our civilization and our individual lives.

Saving the People's Money: Wage-Price Council Challenges Gov't's Own Inflation-Making 'Untouchable' Agencies

WASHINGTON — There is one council inside the White House which isn't spinning its wheels, which is beginning to pick up speed, unnoticed and frequently unreported, in the anti-inflation fight. It is beginning to save the people some of their pocket and table money.

This is the Council on Wage and Price Stability which has been accused of being toothless. So its bark may be louder than its bite. And that's all to the good.

This council, headed by Princeton Prof. Al Rees, has begun challenging the federal government's own untouchables, the regulatory agencies which have become powerful and haughty baronies making costly decisions year after year, President after President. The bureaucracies go on forever in a power world all their own.

There is, for example, the little-known National Highway Traffic Safety Administration of the Department of Transportation which handled the matter of reducing the resistance of automobile bumpers from a crash speed of five miles an hourto two and a half miles an hour. This would have mean lighter bumpers. But Prof. Rees tells me it would cost the vehicle owners $6 billion more in automobile insurance premiums.

So the wage -price council asked for the documents on the case. What is the inflation impact? Rees wants to know because President Ford wants to know.

And, on Jan. 1, this bureau ruled that buses must install special anti-skid brakes. Further, trucks must also put them in on or by March 1. These are very expensive to install. The whole adjustment could cost the public hundreds of millions of dollars not only in mass transportation, because fares would go up, but also in the movement of food and freight.

So the wage-price council forced the bureau to reopen the hearings. They went ahead with their ruling nonetheless. But the "dialogue" goes on. It may well be settled by Mr. Ford's chief economic controller -- Bill Seidman.

Then there is the powerful untouchable Interstate Commerce Commission -- the ICC. It has authority over trucking. One of its regulations requires huge vans, under certain circumstances, to roll home empty hundreds of miles, sometimes thousands. For example, there is a big corporation which owns both a hamburger subsidiary and a famed flour company. Each has a truck fleet of its own.

But because of archaic rules, one fleet cannot carry its sister company's freight or produce even if the trucks are empty homeward bound.

So the wage-price council is intervening. Why can't this be rectified? Whose interests are served by this silly regulation? Why not reduce the vans' emptiness and thus cut the company's costs and therefore the public's food bills? Why not save fuel by filling the emptiness?

Or there is the council's intervention in the A.T. & T. application for a $700 million annual rate increase. The phone company must get Federal Communications Commission (FCC) approval. The council has asked that approval be delayed while Prof. Rees's men study the impact on the people.

This challenge of the untouchables is not a Rees monopoly. Recently the Department of Transportation (DOT) took on the ICC in another case involving trucking. One big transportation company asked a 10 per cent premium for pledging to deliver freight right on time -- or all the money back. The ICC, with a mere shrug, refused approval of this proposal. Since it affected trucking rates, said the ICC, it means that freight might be hauled free of charge. But the DOT asked how come? And the fight's on.

All this is big new inside the government. No one ever has squared off with the untouchables. Yet the regulatory agencies have power over everything from toy manufacturers to certified public accountants, to the stock markets, and supermarkets. You name it. The FCC, the FTC, the ICC, etc., controls it. There's very little you do or spend which isn't affected by these commissions. Many of them are so encrusted in the federal woodwork the average citizen, even some specialists, never have heard of them.

Now the counteroffensive is on. It began on Nov. 27. President Ford then issued an executive order directing all federal agencies which issue new regulations or decisions to include an inflation-impact statement. Summaries of these statements now automatically go to the wage price council. If Rees's people have any questions, they can and do call for the whole analysis.

In his fashion the council can monitor all inflationary impact, all the increasing of costs and therefore prices to you and you.

Thus the council's jurisdiction is as gargantuan as is our government. Hunderds of billions of dollars are involved. And agencies the public knows, such as the Environmental Protection Agency. And some the public really doesn't know -- such as Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA to the insiders).

In effect the council does have veto power. It can go to Seidman whom the Pesident trusts to act without his direct consent. In a critical matter Seidman can go directly to the President.

Who says the Council on Wage and Price Stability needs teeth? Not when its bark is worse than is bite.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: CIA Sex Set-Up

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — For years, the Central Intelligence Agency operated love traps in New York City and San Francisco, where foreign diplomats were lured by prostitutes in the pay of the CIA.

Through hidden one-way mirrors, CIA agents filmed the sexual adventures and later tried to blackmail the victims into becoming informants.

The stranger-than-fiction story of the blackmail operation is one of the secrets which the CIA is frantically trying to hide from congressional investigators. But we have uncovered the details and will be happy to furnish Congress with the evidence.

Significantly, the CIA used the old Bureau of Narcotics as a cover for the bizarre sex set-up. In both cities, narcotics agents rented and maintained adjoining efficiency apartments. It was their responsibility to make sure the blackmail apartment had a lived-in look and was kept stocked with food and liquor, so the victims wouls't become suspicious.

In San Francisco, the blackmail apartment was opened in the late 1950s and closed about 1965. It was equipped only with bugging devices, not observation mirrors. The New York operation lasted from about 1960 to 1966.

On the East Coast, the dual efficiency apartments were located on the sixth floor of a high-rise apartment building in Greenwich Village. On the wall of the blackmail apartment was hung a large painting of two ships. But the painting was actually a Mission Impossible-style one-way mirror.

On the other side of the wall, CIA agents could watch the action through the see-through painting andfilm the most intimate moments. The painting was strategically placed so that it gave the CIA observers a full view of the sofa, which opened into a bed. A Japanese screen, implanted with microphones, provided the sound for the CIA's blackmail movies.

On the CIA side of the wall, the one-way miorror was hidden behind a painting with hinges. The agents would merely swing back the painting like a cabinet door for the peep shows in the adjoining apartment.

To stage the shows, both male and female prostitutes with a variety of sexual skills were used. The CIA possibly got the idea from the Russians, who have long used sex blackmail to entrap Westerners into spying for them.

Footnote: The narcs used the apartments when the CIA didn't need them. They would be advised to stay away on certain nights. The monthly rent for the dual Greenwich Village apartments was $160 each. The rent, food and liquor bills were paid out of a special checking account in a bank near the New York narcotics office. Our associate Bob Ownes contacted a CIA spokesman who said the agency had "never heard of this."

WATCH ON WASTE: Deep in the rugged Canadian backcountry of Labrador, the U.S. Strategic Air Command has maintained three rustic fishing lodges for vacationing military brass.

Through last August, the favored officers were served by guides who helped them choose lures and clean their fish, while cooks and other lackeys catered to their slightest whims. The tab, of course, was picked up by the taxpayers.

Originally established as survival training camps, the lodges were used for several years as vacation spas. Among the guests has been Joint Chiefs of Staff Gen. George Brown.

Last year, $35,000 in salaries was spent to coddle the visiting bigwigs. Another $4,200 was paid out by the Strategic Air Command in maintenance costs. An Air Force spokesman pointed out, however, that the lodge guests paid for their own food.

The visiting VIPs, however, did not pay for their air transportation to the remote but spacious fishing lodges. They were shuttled from the SAC base at Goose Bay, Canada, on ancient planes called "Otters" and "Albatrosses." Incredibly, the SAC budget listed these planes as "strategic offensive aircraft."

These pontoon planes were also used to shuttle visitors and SAC personnel stationed at Goose Bay to Sand Hill, another Canadian lodge which is privately owned by a retired general.

The public is now rid of this tax burden. The Pentagon says it will not reopen the lodges next summer, but instead will turn them over to the Canadian government.

Footnote: While the Pentagon has economized on these Canadian lodges at No Name River and Minipi Lake, the brass still has taxpayer-supported fishing lodges in Alaska. Congress has now asked the General Accounting Office to look into all such military vacation spots.

TRIPLE-DIPPER: Able John Molinari, who collects nearly $20,000 a year from the taxpayers as head of the state office of Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., switches hats to pick up two other paychecks.

At Western Electric, he is paid a part-time rate based on hours worked, and gets a paid, five-week vacation plus pay for holidays. At the International Brotherhood of Electrical Engineers, he collects about $400 a month as the financial secretary.

Molinari, who has worked in the Senate for 14 years, says he sees "no conflict" among his three highly diverse jobs. "I call the shots as I see them."

Why go about with black eyes that are unnecessary?

LIKE WHAT'S HAPPENING AT WASHINGTON

Monroe Countians like what is happening in Congress-the rise of power enough by new members and other dissidents to unseat the chairmen of several important committees, and to by-pass the ancient system of choosing chairmen merely because they have been there longer than anyone else on the committee.

The Seniority rule has too often resulted in the choice of men and women who are either too old or too incompetent.

Only by moves such as those going on in Congress can our legislative arm get a breath of fresh air.

The action encourages everyone to hope that it will not be "business as usual" at Washington, and that there may be considerable improvement there.

HOW'S THAT AGAIN??

The following "greeting" was received from a financial advisory publication which, after reading it several times, we decided to share with Standard readers. Here it is:

"Once more we wish to add our wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year. Our warnings of trouble down the road have largely come to pass, and although we are still in a gloom-and-doom atmosphere, the long term future looks very bright. We are dealing with a number of significant social shifts that require a reordering of economic priorities. At the same time the present course of independent eventys dictates a reordering of priorities. What we will see out of this in the years immediately ahead is a continuation of the dramatic process of change that we have witnessed over the past ten years.

"The perception of change is not easy during the lull between socioeconomic phases, since we are all turned into the leadership of the last phase. However, such a period is rather exciting because more thinking goes into business and investment decisions as well as what we should do with our own lives. Any time of trouble brings about as a reaction the release of our innovative spiritis to translate our natural resources and technology into a better world.

"Sure, we know it is easier to call it quits when one does not like what is going on. A lot has been going on and everybody can find one or more things he does not like. If we all gave up and returned to the womb, not much would be accomplished. We think the diversity and excitement of what is ahead of us ought to keep us busy and active for many decades. We may not come out of each crisis exactly the way we like, but we have the ability to muddle through, to accomplish what needs to be done and to concentrate our brain power for the good of all people.

"So keep in mind that fluctuations in interest rates and stock prices will occur, and that they could be quite sharp, particularly in an atmosphere of increasing instability. Don't, however, become so engrossed in near-term events, problems and fears that you forget the long-pull positive consequences of what is happening. Unrest motivates creative talents, so be cheerfully contrary to an overabundance of disaster news. There is a case for optimism.

"Business moves in long cycles where 'fine tuning' has little effect, and 1975, more than most years, will be easy to explain on exit but rather difficult on entrance. Our emphasis on preservation of capital should be your continuing objective."

OF VESTED INTERESTS AND PUBLIC WELFARE

For three-quarters of the world's four billion people, the slender reeds of the rice plant form the greatest single barrier between nutrition and starvation.

It is a fact of our time that rice crops in the world's major growing area, which are also the areas of fastest population growth, have been unable to keep up with demand. The future looks even more critical as a result of changing weather patterns and soaring ferilizer costs.

Only the United States, which is 11th in the world's ranking of rice producers, remains in a position to export rice. Of the five million tons produced in the United States in 1973, fully 67 per cent of the crop was exported to more than 100 countries.

With two million acres currently under rice cultivation, predominantly in Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Arkansas and California, this year's crop is expected to yield 6.5 million tons, of which more than two-thirds will go to overseas markets.

For a nation allegedly based on waste, it is worth noting that it takes the average American farmer only two man-days of labor to grow and harvest one acre of rice compared with 400 man-days per acre in most of the developing nations, there rice is the staple crop.

According to spokesmen for chemical manufacturers, however, the American farmer faces a major threat to his ability to grow the crops that will meet home demand as well as help ease the crisis in the world's rice bowl.

The threat, they say, is the attack which certain pressure groups have launched against one of the chemicals which have helped give the United States its rice-exporting capability, the pesticide 2, 4, 5-T. This, despite a finding by the Environmental Protection Agency that there is no evidence to support withdrawal of the pesticide.

According to the industry, the drive against 2, 4, 5-T could result in the same kind of thing that happened to cyclamates. Following reports that mice had developed cancer about being fed massive dosese of the artificial sweetening additive, the Food and Drug Administration banned cyclamates in October, 1969.

Since then, the original tests have been called into question by other tests, but the ban continues and Americans are denied the use of a proven sugar substitute at a time when sugar prices have taken off for the sky. Similar "precipitate action:; against 2, 4, 5-T could cause an even more serious situation.

The pesticide manufacturers, of course, are suspect right from the start. They are in the business of selling chemicals, not feeding the world's hungry or protecting the environment. Farmers have no less an important financial stake. Last year's rice crop had a record valuation of $1.3 billion.

Yet the environmentalists have occasionally seemed to be guided by the philosophy that every manmade produce or process is guilty of causing harm until proven innocent, and have sometimes seemed less than concerned about the long'term economic and human consequences of their actions.

Wherein lies the truth of the matter? What is fact and what is self-interest?

An informed public is vital to the operation of a democracy and to the finding of solutions to the challenges facing it. But the controversy over 2,4,5-T, like so many others involving technology, is an example of its being given the kind of information it is not qualified to assess intelligently.

On the one side are experts, but on the other side are experts also. Caught in the middle are the great mass of people who, in one way or another will be directly affected by the decisions made by those who govern them.

THOUGHTFUL RECOGNITION

For a superpower whose every move sends vibrations around the world, the United States has taken a lot of guff in recent years, much of it undeserved. It came as a rather pleasant surprise, therefore, when Lord Kenneth Clark, of the "Civilisation" cultural series on art, praised the U.S. and presented almost 100 rare books from his personal library to the Pierpont Morgan Library in New York. He explained, "...during the last 50 years the United States has been infinitely generous to Great Britain. They have not only saved us from extinction in two wars, but they have saved buildings and books that mean much to us. As far as I know the movement has been all one way. My offer to the Morgan Library is a small--a very small--sign of recognition of what we owe to the United States." It's nice to know that someone appreciates our efforts.

XXX

THOSE HIGHER POWER COSTS

For literally pennies a day most of us have, until now, been able to heat our homes, cook our meals, do our washing and use all those other electrical luxuries from toothbrushes to television sets. In short, we have been enjoying a bargain that has brought us not only the necessities of life, but entertainment, leisure and personal comfort as well.

A major electric utility reports that while its rates increased only nine percent from 1962 to 1972, prices of food and other goods and services in its area have, in some cases, risen anywhere from 30 to over 100 percent during that period. For example, butter costs 78 percent more today that a decade ago, tuna fish 42 percent and coffee 72 percent. During this period, the company's costs for materials, equipment and other goods and services have risen as well. Wages are up 78 percent over 10 years ago, taxes have skyrocketed 171 percent and interest rates have climbed 56 percent.

But inflation is not the only factor compelling utility rate increases. Environmental legislation requires electric companies to burn cleaner, more expensive fuels in power plants. In many cases, equipment must be modified in order to burn them. In the years ahead, research to develop new methods of generating electricity will demand hundreds of millions of dollars, and the only source of additional revenue is rate increases.

Utilities ask for rate increases to pay the higher costs of producing electric power. These increased costs of operation are, for the most part, as much beyond the control of electric companies as they are beyond the control of power consumers. Higher power production costs are a fact of life--a fact that must now be reflected in the cost of this service so vital to our civilization and our individual lives.

Saving the People's Money: Wage-Price Council Challenges Gov't's Own Inflation-Making 'Untouchable' Agencies

WASHINGTON — There is one council inside the White House which isn't spinning its wheels, which is beginning to pick up speed, unnoticed and frequently unreported, in the anti-inflation fight. It is beginning to save the people some of their pocket and table money.

This is the Council on Wage and Price Stability which has been accused of being toothless. So its bark may be louder than its bite. And that's all to the good.

This council, headed by Princeton Prof. Al Rees, has begun challenging the federal government's own untouchables, the regulatory agencies which have become powerful and haughty baronies making costly decisions year after year, President after President. The bureaucracies go on forever in a power world all their own.

There is, for example, the little-known National Highway Traffic Safety Administration of the Department of Transportation which handled the matter of reducing the resistance of automobile bumpers from a crash speed of five miles an hourto two and a half miles an hour. This would have mean lighter bumpers. But Prof. Rees tells me it would cost the vehicle owners $6 billion more in automobile insurance premiums.

So the wage -price council asked for the documents on the case. What is the inflation impact? Rees wants to know because President Ford wants to know.

And, on Jan. 1, this bureau ruled that buses must install special anti-skid brakes. Further, trucks must also put them in on or by March 1. These are very expensive to install. The whole adjustment could cost the public hundreds of millions of dollars not only in mass transportation, because fares would go up, but also in the movement of food and freight.

So the wage-price council forced the bureau to reopen the hearings. They went ahead with their ruling nonetheless. But the "dialogue" goes on. It may well be settled by Mr. Ford's chief economic controller -- Bill Seidman.

Then there is the powerful untouchable Interstate Commerce Commission -- the ICC. It has authority over trucking. One of its regulations requires huge vans, under certain circumstances, to roll home empty hundreds of miles, sometimes thousands. For example, there is a big corporation which owns both a hamburger subsidiary and a famed flour company. Each has a truck fleet of its own.

But because of archaic rules, one fleet cannot carry its sister company's freight or produce even if the trucks are empty homeward bound.

So the wage-price council is intervening. Why can't this be rectified? Whose interests are served by this silly regulation? Why not reduce the vans' emptiness and thus cut the company's costs and therefore the public's food bills? Why not save fuel by filling the emptiness?

Or there is the council's intervention in the A.T. & T. application for a $700 million annual rate increase. The phone company must get Federal Communications Commission (FCC) approval. The council has asked that approval be delayed while Prof. Rees's men study the impact on the people.

This challenge of the untouchables is not a Rees monopoly. Recently the Department of Transportation (DOT) took on the ICC in another case involving trucking. One big transportation company asked a 10 per cent premium for pledging to deliver freight right on time -- or all the money back. The ICC, with a mere shrug, refused approval of this proposal. Since it affected trucking rates, said the ICC, it means that freight might be hauled free of charge. But the DOT asked how come? And the fight's on.

All this is big new inside the government. No one ever has squared off with the untouchables. Yet the regulatory agencies have power over everything from toy manufacturers to certified public accountants, to the stock markets, and supermarkets. You name it. The FCC, the FTC, the ICC, etc., controls it. There's very little you do or spend which isn't affected by these commissions. Many of them are so encrusted in the federal woodwork the average citizen, even some specialists, never have heard of them.

Now the counteroffensive is on. It began on Nov. 27. President Ford then issued an executive order directing all federal agencies which issue new regulations or decisions to include an inflation-impact statement. Summaries of these statements now automatically go to the wage price council. If Rees's people have any questions, they can and do call for the whole analysis.

In his fashion the council can monitor all inflationary impact, all the increasing of costs and therefore prices to you and you.

Thus the council's jurisdiction is as gargantuan as is our government. Hunderds of billions of dollars are involved. And agencies the public knows, such as the Environmental Protection Agency. And some the public really doesn't know -- such as Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA to the insiders).

In effect the council does have veto power. It can go to Seidman whom the Pesident trusts to act without his direct consent. In a critical matter Seidman can go directly to the President.

Who says the Council on Wage and Price Stability needs teeth? Not when its bark is worse than is bite.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: CIA Sex Set-Up

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — For years, the Central Intelligence Agency operated love traps in New York City and San Francisco, where foreign diplomats were lured by prostitutes in the pay of the CIA.

Through hidden one-way mirrors, CIA agents filmed the sexual adventures and later tried to blackmail the victims into becoming informants.

The stranger-than-fiction story of the blackmail operation is one of the secrets which the CIA is frantically trying to hide from congressional investigators. But we have uncovered the details and will be happy to furnish Congress with the evidence.

Significantly, the CIA used the old Bureau of Narcotics as a cover for the bizarre sex set-up. In both cities, narcotics agents rented and maintained adjoining efficiency apartments. It was their responsibility to make sure the blackmail apartment had a lived-in look and was kept stocked with food and liquor, so the victims wouls't become suspicious.

In San Francisco, the blackmail apartment was opened in the late 1950s and closed about 1965. It was equipped only with bugging devices, not observation mirrors. The New York operation lasted from about 1960 to 1966

On the East Coast, the dual efficiency apartments were located on the sixth floor of a high-rise apartment building in Greenwich Village. On the wall of the blackmail apartment was hung a large painting of two ships. But the painting was actually a Mission Impossible-style one-way mirror.

On the other side of the wall, CIA agents could watch the action through the see-through painting andfilm the most intimate moments. The painting was strategically placed so that it gave the CIA observers a full view of the sofa, which opened into a bed. A Japanese screen, implanted with microphones, provided the sound for the CIA's blackmail movies.

On the CIA side of the wall, the one-way miorror was hidden behind a painting with hinges. The agents would merely swing back the painting like a cabinet door for the peep shows in the adjoining apartment.

To stage the shows, both male and female prostitutes with a variety of sexual skills were used. The CIA possibly got the idea from the Russians, who have long used sex blackmail to entrap Westerners into spying for them.

Footnote: The narcs used the apartments when the CIA didn't need them. They would be advised to stay away on certain nights. The monthly rent for the dual Greenwich Village apartments was $160 each. The rent, food and liquor bills were paid out of a special checking account in a bank near the New York narcotics office. Our associate Bob Ownes contacted a CIA spokesman who said the agency had "never heard of this."

WATCH ON WASTE: Deep in the rugged Canadian backcountry of Labrador, the U.S. Strategic Air Command has maintained three rustic fishing lodges for vacationing military brass.

Through last August, the favored officers were served by guides who helped them choose lures and clean their fish, while cooks and other lackeys catered to their slightest whims. The tab, of course, was picked up by the taxpayers.

Originally established as survival training camps, the lodges were used for several years as vacation spas. Among the guests has been Joint Chiefs of Staff Gen. George Brown.

Last year, $35,000 in salaries was spent to coddle the visiting bigwigs. Another $4,200 was paid out by the Strategic Air Command in maintenance costs. An Air Force spokesman pointed out, however, that the lodge guests paid for their own food.

The visiting VIPs, however, did not pay for their air transportation to the remote but spacious fishing lodges. They were shuttled from the SAC base at Goose Bay, Canada, on ancient planes called "Otters" and "Albatrosses." Incredibly, the SAC budget listed these planes as "strategic offensive aircraft."

These pontoon planes were also used to shuttle visitors and SAC personnel stationed at Goose Bay to Sand Hill, another Canadian lodge which is privately owned by a retired general.

The public is now rid of this tax burden. The Pentagon says it will not reopen the lodges next summer, but instead will turn them over to the Canadian government.

Footnote: While the Pentagon has economized on these Canadian lodges at No Name River and Minipi Lake, the brass still has taxpayer-supported fishing lodges in Alaska. Congress has now asked the General Accounting Office to look into all such military vacation spots.

TRIPLE-DIPPER: Able John Molinari, who collects nearly $20,000 a year from the taxpayers as head of the state office of Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., switches hats to pick up two other paychecks.

At Western Electric, he is paid a part-time rate based on hours worked, and gets a paid, five-week vacation plus pay for holidays. At the International Brotherhood of Electrical Engineers, he collects about $400 a month as the financial secretary.

Molinari, who has worked in the Senate for 14 years, says he sees "no conflict" among his three highly diverse jobs. "I call the shots as I see them."

Extension members named

BLOOMFIELD-Five positions on the Stoddard County University of Missouri Extension Council were filled by mail ballot on Jan. 21 according to council chairman Jim Miller of Dexter Route Two, who expressed the election committee's satisfaction with participation by the people of Stoddard County in the election this year.

Elected at large in the county were: Larry Mayberry of Essex route One, an incumbent and new members Stanley Lumsden of Bloomfield, Darrel Dixon of Dexter, Route Two, Joe French of Painton and Harry Barker of Dexter Route Three.

Other members on the council whose terms have not expired include: Jim Miller, Bill Pippins of Dexter, Wayne Sides of Bernie route One; Judge Harold Snider of Dexter Route Three, John A. Rowland of Dexter Route One, Thomas Pendleman Jr. of Painton, Claude Townsend and Vernon Bridges of Puxico route Two, Erma Ralaford of Bloomfield Route Two, Mrs. Kay Cain of Essex Route One and Robert Mayer of Dexter Route One.

Members retiring from the council were: Robert McGhee of Essex Route One. Jim D. Jeffress of Painton, Louis Buchanan and George Foster of Puxico Route Two, Rex Wellman of Bloomfield route Three and George Corlies of Dexter Route Three.

The council revised the election procedure in 1974 from a township election to a countywide system in which only five members are to be elected annually, beginning this year. All terms are for two years. Members can serve two full terms before becoming ineligible to serve.

The Stoddard County University of Missouri Extension Council is responsible for the guidance and direction of university extension programs in the county.

With the cooperation of the Stoddard County Court, the council is responsible for seeing that an adequate budget is prepared and that adequate finances are available to fund the extension program in the county. The council holds elections annually to meet the law on keeping an active extension council.

The council meets the first Monday evening of each month to transact business.

Charleston man among members to file court suit

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Board of Education became the second state board Tuesday to have members enter court suits seeking to recapture seats taken from them by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

In addition, another board member, James Butler of the Missouri Labor and Industrial Relations Commission, fought back Tuesday at a suit filed by Atty. Gen. John Danforth with the Missouri Supreme Court aimed at forcing Butler to cease acting as a board member.

The suit filed by education board members W.C. Banta of Charleston, Harvey B. Young of Kirksville, John M. Morris Jr. of Rolla and Jack Webster of Springfield in Cole County Circuit Court Tuesday is similar to one filed by former Highway Commissioner Roger Linsin in December.

Bond replaced the commissioners before their terms expired based on an attorney general's opinion that said the reorganization law effectively abolished all state boards and commissions then existing even if the powers and duties were unchanged.

Both of the suits against the replacement of the board members contend that because reorganization left the boards intact, there was no need for appointment of new members.

The Missouri Senate Gubernatorial Appointments Committee has taken a stance similar to the one outlined in the suits and thus has denied appointment of replacements to the commissions, leaving them without enough members to do business.

In the other court case involving Labor and Industrial Relations Commissioner Butler, a brief filed by Butler with the Supreme Court claimed Tuesday that both the Missouri Constitution and state law call for his continuation in office.

Progress, future plans discussed

Mayor Frank Ferrell discussed progress made by the city of Sikeston in 1974, as well as plans for 1975, as he addressed the Sikeston Kiwanis Club Tuesday night at Purkey's Restaurant.

Mayor Ferrell reported that phase one of the airport improvement program was completed in 1974 at a cost of $283,000. Application has been made for phase two improvements, he added.

One of the largest projects undertaken by the city last year was the recreational complex, which will be complete enough for baseball this spring. The cost of the complex was $225,000, with 50 per cent of funds obtained by federal grant, the mayor noted.

The Kiwanis Club is sponsoring a project at the complex as a memorial to George Kirk, a member who died last year and other clubs and individuals have shown interest in helping with the complex.

Other accomplishments noted by the mayor included passage of the bond issue for a new water treatment plant, improvements in city equipment and personnel and adoption of a city solid waste collection program which began Jan. 2.

A bond issue for Triangle Conduit and Cable Co. was also approved in 1974. Mayor Ferrell reported that Triangle has spent $20,000 for offices and plans to ship equipment soon. The plant manager has already moved to Sikeston, he added.

City government personnel changes included a new city clerk and new city manager. Lynn Lancaster became city clerk upon the retirement of John Vaughn, and Charles Church was hired as city manager last year.

Activities in 1975 will include increased work on plans for a new fire station on North Main Street somewhere between the Missouri Pacific railroad tracks and Wakefield Street, the mayor said.

He reported that the city will need more revenue for 1976-77 and said that was the reason an advisory committee was formed to study the city sales tax issue. A sales tax would mean the city could have more capital on hand to work with, Ferrell said, thus saving the city money by paying cash for any improvements.

Ferrell also said the city is studying the possibility of hiring an administrator of public safety, who would be in charge of both the fire and police departments.

In addition to Ferrell's talk, the club announced that there would be a farmers night Feb. 18 and that a fish fry for Kiwanians will be held March 11 at the James Sanders home to prepare for the club's annual Pancake Day, which has been set for March 25. Roy White and Charles Chaney are co-chairmen of the annual Pancake Day project.

The Stoddard County University of Missouri Extension Council is responsible for the guidance and direction of university extension programs in the county.

With the cooperation of the Stoddard County Court, the council is responsible for seeing that an adequate budget is prepared and that adequate finances are available to fund the extension program in the county. The council holds elections annually to meet the law on keeping an active extension council.

The council meets the first Monday evening of each month to transact business.

Charleston man among members to file court suit

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Board of Education became the second state board Tuesday to have members enter court suits seeking to recapture seats taken from them by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

In addition, another board member, James Butler of the Missouri Labor and Industrial Relations Commission, fought back Tuesday at a suit filed by Atty. Gen. John Danforth with the Missouri Supreme Court aimed at forcing Butler to cease acting as a board member.

The suit filed by education board members W.C. Banta of Charleston, Harvey B. Young of Kirksville, John M. Morris Jr. of Rolla and Jack Webster of Springfield in Cole County Circuit Court Tuesday is similar to one filed by former Highway Commissioner Roger Linsin in December.

Bond replaced the commissioners before their terms expired based on an attorney general's opinion that said the reorganization law effectively abolished all state boards and commissions then existing even if the powers and duties were unchanged.

Both of the suits against the replacement of the board members contend that because reorganization left the boards intact, there was no need for appointment of new members.

The Missouri Senate Gubernatorial Appointments Committee has taken a stance similar to the one outlined in the suits and thus has denied appointment of replacements to the commissions, leaving them without enough members to do business.

In the other court case involving Labor and Industrial Relations Commissioner Butler, a brief filed by Butler with the Supreme Court claimed Tuesday that both the Missouri Constitution and state law call for his continuation in office.

Progress, future plans discussed

Mayor Frank Ferrell discussed progress made by the city of Sikeston in 1974, as well as plans for 1975, as he addressed the Sikeston Kiwanis Club Tuesday night at Purkey's Restaurant.

Mayor Ferrell reported that phase one of the airport improvement program was completed in 1974 at a cost of $283,000. Application has been made for phase two improvements, he added.

One of the largest projects undertaken by the city last year was the recreational complex, which will be complete enough for baseball this spring. The cost of the complex was $225,000, with 50 per cent of funds obtained by federal grant, the mayor noted.

The Kiwanis Club is sponsoring a project at the complex as a memorial to George Kirk, a member who died last year and other clubs and individuals have shown interest in helping with the complex.

Other accomplishments noted by the mayor included passage of the bond issue for a new water treatment plant, improvements in city equipment and personnel and adoption of a city solid waste collection program which began Jan. 2.

A bond issue for Triangle Conduit and Cable Co. was also approved in 1974. Mayor Ferrell reported that Triangle has spent $20,000 for offices and plans to ship equipment soon. The plant manager has already moved to Sikeston, he added.

City government personnel changes included a new city clerk and new city manager. Lynn Lancaster became city clerk upon the retirement of John Vaughn, and Charles Church was hired as city manager last year.

Activities in 1975 will include increased work on plans for a new fire station on North Main Street somewhere between the Missouri Pacific railroad tracks and Wakefield Street, the mayor said.

He reported that the city will need more revenue for 1976-77 and said that was the reason an advisory committee was formed to study the city sales tax issue. A sales tax would mean the city could have more capital on hand to work with, Ferrell said, thus saving the city money by paying cash for any improvements.

Ferrell also said the city is studying the possibility of hiring an administrator of public safety, who would be in charge of both the fire and police departments.

In addition to Ferrell's talk, the club announced that there would be a farmers night Feb. 18 and that a fish fry for Kiwanians will be held March 11 at the James Sanders home to prepare for the club's annual Pancake Day, which has been set for March 25. Roy White and Charles Chaney are co-chairmen of the annual Pancake Day project.

Reader puts Ann on the line

Dear Ann Landers: Your credibility is on the line, Baby. Better come up with a good answer to this one – or else.

Your response to T.L.S. was, "Relax – no letters are kept on file in this office. We destroy every letter the moment it has been answered."

How then are you able to rerun a letter, word for word, months later, if the original letter is challenged? I also refuse to believe that "every letter written to Ann Landers is seen only by me or one of my competent, close-mouthed secretaries." Why then must we send our letters to our local newspaper where, I've been told, they are screened and a very small number sent to you?

It seems to me that anyone stupid enough to sign his right name to a damaging confession should be informed that the news media in that person's home town has first crack at it. If I'm wrong, give me one good reason for this roundabout mailing approach to your desk." Not So Dumb

Dear N.S.D.' First, I can produce old letters verbatim months after they've appeared because I keep scrapbooks which contain every column I've ever written.

As for the roundabout mailing approach, it's a pain in the neck to me, and not many papers do it. You happen to be reading me in one that does. Ninety per cent of the papers publish a P.O. Box number.

It is NOT true that your local newspaper office opens and screens the letters and sends only a selected few to me. If you have any evidence to the contrary let me know immediately and I'll see that a stop is put to it.

A few papers ask readers to send their letters to the local office so they can gauge the mail pull and evaluate my readership. They are NOT interested in nosing around. The letters are forwarded, unopneed.

The following is a rerun, which I could have found in my scrapbook had the reader described it or given me the date. In this instance, however, the reader sent the column, yellowed with age, and wrote:

Dear Ann: The best column you ever wrote has been in my wallet for several years. It is barely readable, but I'm sure you can make it out. Please run it again so I can carry it around for another decade. – Your Friend

Dear Friend: With pleasure. Here it is:

Dear Ann Landers: You get many letters from people who are lonely. They wonder why.

Yesterday, a person I work with complained that no one likes her. I sat down and listed the personality and character traitsI dislike most. Strangely enough, out of the ten traits, this person has seven. Please print the list. It might help some people see themselves as others see them.

1. A compulsion to show off knowledge.
2. Exaggerates to the point that it's the next thing to lying.
3. Moodiness. Friendly one day, unfriendly the next.
4. Bossiness. Must run everything.
5. Not reliable. Word is no good.
6. Chronic complainer. Inveterate crepe-hanger.
7. Nosy. Asks questions that are none of her business.
8. Gossipy. Knows everything about everybody. Makes you wonder what she is saying about you.

American diets called too rich rather than poor

This column is a service from Cooperative Extension Nutritionists at Lincoln University and the University of Missouri. Questions from readers about food and diet are welcomed. Letters should be addressed to: Dr. James W. Nordstrom, Nutditidon Extension, Lincoln University, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

Q. Everybody seems to think that our modern diets are poor and are a cause of our health problems. Please comment.

A. As far as our health is concerned it appears that most American diets could be said to be too "rich" rather than "poor". At least this is true for calories, which explains why obesity is our major malnutrition problem today. You may be aware of the many health problems associated with being overweight. These include the increased risks of heart disease, diabetes and kidney disease. Fat people also have less chance of recovery from surgery and serious illinesses. All of these disadvantages add up to decreased life expectancey.

The fact that we eat so much sugar helps account for some of the excess calories in our diets. Sugar is also largely responsible for the tooth decay and gum disease that plagues western man. Another excessive component of diets that addscaloriesis fat, which happens to be the most concentrated source of energy man can utilize. I also think that many of us would be better off with less salt in our diets, and it appears that we tend to eat far more protein than necessary..

Other nutritional problems in our country appear to be relatively monor in comparison to the over-consumption of calories. However, certain specific nutrients have been found to be lacking for portions of our population. Iron appears to be deficient for many people, with resulting anemia. Vitamin A is frequently inadequate in diets, especially for ower income and minority groups.

A non-nutrient, fiber, has been declining in diets as people have increased consumption of refined foods. Evidence has been growing that fiber probably fulfills a vital role in the proper functioning and good health of the digestive tract.

Some general recommendations that can be made for improving diets are to increase the consumption of grain products, vegetables and fruits.

Eating more of these foods can help overcome many of the problems mentioned in our preceding discussion..

Cereal foods that utilize more of the bran, outer seed coat and germ parts of grain kernels are to be preferred over foods made from highly refined flours. This is because more minerals, vitamins and fiber are present in less refined grain products such as whole wheat bread, bran muffins and ready-to-eat breakfast cereals. Iron enriched breakfast foods also can add important amount of iron to diets.

Green and deep yellow vegetables usually are good sources of vitamin A, the vitamin most frequently found to be deficient in American diets. Cooked and fresh greens (spinach, mustard, collards, kale, ect.), broccoli, carrots, winter squash and sweet potatoes are examples of vegetables rich in vitamin A value.

Fresh, frozen, dried or canned fruit can also supply vitamins, minerals and fiber to diets. Apricots are a good source of vitamin A (as one might suspect from their deep yellow color). The citrus fruits are well known for their content of vitamin C. Many other fruits and vegetables (including strawberries, tomatoes and potatoes) also contain important amounts of vitamin C. Most of us could save grocery money by using more cereals, vegetables and fruits in our daily diets as partial replacements for foods high in protein, fats and refined sugars. We would also probably be less overweight, healthier and feel better.

County editor's newspaper career spans 70 years

By NELLIE ANN LANHAM

SHELBINA — At the age of 10, Edgar P. Blanton became a paper boy for the Monroe County Appeal at Paris, Mo., and began a career that has spanned 70 years, 49 of them as editor of the Shelbina Democrat.

This January Blanton relinquished control of the Democrat to his son, Carter V. Blanton, but he continues to write his weekly column and maintains a lively interest in the newspaper and the town.

Newspapering came naturally to Edgar, the son of Jack Blanton, editor of the Appeal, and a member of a newspapering family known in Missouri and across the nation. Edgar started by delivering 100 copies of the Appeal each week, door to door, for which he received no pay except a Christmas token. This sometimes amounted to as much as $20 in dimes and quarters. At age 12, he began to set type after school and on Saturdays, receiving $1 a week.

He attended the University of Kansas and Missouri University, and during World War I Became one of the first "flying cadets." While in service in 1918, Blanton married Rebecca Vaughn. Today they reside at the Salt River Nursing Home in Shelbina.

Newspapering drew young Blanton back after the war, and he returned to the Appeal where he worked for six years as business manager and reporter. When he suggested that he might become a partner in the business, his father told him to get his own newspaper.

Friendly rivalry between Paris and Shelbina, 20 miles away, might have made the idea of going into newspapering there more interesting. At the age of 32, on Jan. 6, 1926, Blanton published his first edition of The Shelbina Democrat.

For the first three years, Blanton owned only two-thirds of the paper, with a son of a former owner having one-third interest. This arrangement did not prove satisfactory, however, and in January 1929, Blanton bought the remaining third and became sole owner of the paper.

One of his first acts was to reduce the price of a subscription from $3 to $1.50, and during the depression he lowered it twice more, until it was only $1. But he managed to keep the paper going through the lean years of the '30's often accepting chickens, eggs, sausage or other produce as payment for a subscription.

The war years brought increased profits to the Democrat and to Blanton, but they cost him one of his sons. Jack P. Blanton, who as older son had been expected to follow his grandfather's footsteps at the Appeal, was killed in action while flying a mission over France June 2, 1944.

Edgar Blanton was always active politically and expressed his opinions forcefully in his editorials. He served as an honorary colonel on the staff of Gov. Phil Donnelly and likes to recall that President Harry Truman once sat in the editor's chair at the Democrat office and put his feet on Blanton's desk.

One of the highlights of the 70-year newspaper career was the visit of the Today Show, an NBC television production, to the Democrat. Filmed by Paul Cunningham, a member of the Today staff, in September 1961, the show featured segments of a football game, an interview with Blanton and a demonstration of how news stories were gathered and written for a community newspaper.

Although the Democrat was the youngest Blanton newspaper in terms of ownership and editing, it was an established business long before Blanton took over. One of the oldest newspapers in Missouri, it was established in 1868 by Samuel Rawlings.

When Blanton purchased the paper, he became the first third-generation Blanton to become a publisher. He was fortunate at the time he entered the business not to have immediate competition in Shelbina, but he survived two attempts to establish The Shelbina News in the late 1930s, each one of which lasted only a short time.

In his 49 years as editor and publisher of the Democrat, Blanton reported and commented on three wars, a depression, numerous periods of recession, murders, births, deaths, weddings and life in general in a small Missouri town. Today much of his writing in "Your Editor Speaks Out" brings back the past as seen by a country editor. His lengthy career, from paper boy to publisher emeritus, has earned him a place in Missouri letters.

Mississippi County vets to get $17,000

For some 230 of the war veterans living in Mississippi County, Washington is offering greetings of a pleasant kind.

With the greetings is the news that they will receive approximately $17,000 in the months ahead as their share of a $335.6 million melon being cut by the government.

The money represents dividends that have fallen due them under their GI insurance policies.

Local veterans whose service was solely in the Vietnam War will not participate at this time because of the type of insurance policies hey hold.

On the other hand, veterans of the Korean War will be getting payments for the first time.

The majority of the recipients are those who saw service in World War II. Also participating are World War I vets.

According to he Veterans Administration, the $335.6 million dividend to be distributed this year breaks all records. It is $31.8 million more than ever before.

The bigger payout was made possible by the fact that the interst earned by the trust funds that govern the insurance policies has been higher than usual lately.

The great majority of those who will be receiving checks are World War II vets who hold National Service Life Insurance policies bearing the letter V.

World War I vetts who hold U. S. Government Life Insurance policies starting with the letter K and those who were in the Korean conflict and have Veterans Special Life Insurance will also participate.

The 230 residents of Mississippi County who will be benefiting represent only 21 per cent of the 1,100 World War and Korean veterans in the local area. They are the ones who kept their policies in force.

What they will receive will vary in amount, depending upon their age and the size and type of their policies.

For World War I vets, the average will be $169, for those who were in World War II, $83, and for Korean vets, $11.

Their checks will arrive automatically on the anniversary dates of their policies. No applications are necessary.

Senate to study intelligence acts

By STUART SYMINGTON
U. S. Senator — Missouri

WASHINGTON, D.C.--Last week, by a vote of 82 to 4, the Senate approved the establishment of a new Select Committee to study United States intelligence activities at home and abroad.

I supported the creation of that committee, in the Democratic Conference and on the Senate floor, because I believe the time is long overdue for the Congress to exercise true oversight of all our intelligence agencies.

As but one example of the problem, the Central Intelligence Agency subcommittee of the Senate Armed Services Committee has met but ten times in the past seven years, one year did not meet at all. If there had been more review, the Congress and the American people would not have been kept in the dark for so long regarding the war in Laos being run by he CIA under the direction of the Ambassador. This condition was discovered by staff members of the Foreign Relations Committee.

CIA activities, however, account for only about 15 cents of every dollar spent on intelligence activities; therefore, it is wide indeed the members of the new Select Committee have been asked to review all intelligence activities of this government.

Those of us who have advocated for years such an investigation requested we not serve on this new Select Committee but we plan to work with and for the committee as it proceeds with an investigation which could have far-reaching significance on government policy in many areas. Their report is due September 30.

Farm Bill Hearings Scheduled

The Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry has scheduled hearings on the 1975 Farm Bill, beginning February 3-7, and continuing between February 17 and 21.

Especially this year, the Congress and the American people recognize the importance of a true agricultural program for the nation; important because of the need to provide an adequate supply of food for consumers at reasonable prices and for export to other countries, and important because of the need to provide farmers an adequate return on their investment and effort.

Among the particular subjects of the hearings will be commodity food reserves and how they should be handled, increases in support levels and target prices for food and feed grains, price support increases for the dairy industry, legislation to relieve the plight of livestock producers, agricultural exports, the food stamp program and other food programs.

County editor's newspaper career spans 70 years

By NELLIE ANN LANHAM

SHELBINA — At the age of 10, Edgar P. Blanton became a paper boy for the Monroe County Appeal at Paris, Mo., and began a career that has spanned 70 years, 49 of them as editor of the Shelbina Democrat.

This January Blanton relinquished control of the Democrat to his son, Carter V. Blanton, but he continues to write his weekly column and maintains a lively interest in the newspaper and the town.

Newspapering came naturally to Edgar, the son of Jack Blanton, editor of the Appeal, and a member of a newspapering family known in Missouri and across the nation. Edgar started by delivering 100 copies of the Appeal each week, door to door, for which he received no pay except a Christmas token. This sometimes amounted to as much as $20 in dimes and quarters. At age 12, he began to set type after school and on Saturdays, receiving $1 a week.

He attended the University of Kansas and Missouri University, and during World War I Became one of the first "flying cadets." While in service in 1918, Blanton married Rebecca Vaughn. Today they reside at the Salt River Nursing Home in Shelbina.

Newspapering drew young Blanton back after the war, and he returned to the Appeal where he worked for six years as business manager and reporter. When he suggested that he might become a partner in the business, his father told him to get his own newspaper.

Friendly rivalry between Paris and Shelbina, 20 miles away, might have made the idea of going into newspapering there more interesting. At the age of 32, on Jan. 6, 1926, Blanton published his first edition of The Shelbina Democrat.

For the first three years, Blanton owned only two-thirds of the paper, with a son of a former owner having one-third interest. This arrangement did not prove satisfactory, however, and in January 1929, Blanton bought the remaining third and became sole owner of the paper.

One of his first acts was to reduce the price of a subscription from $3 to $1.50, and during the depression he lowered it twice more, until it was only $1. But he managed to keep the paper going through the lean years of the '30's often accepting chickens, eggs, sausage or other produce as payment for a subscription.

The war years brought increased profits to the Democrat and to Blanton, but they cost him one of his sons. Jack P. Blanton, who as older son had been expected to follow his grandfather's footsteps at the Appeal, was killed in action while flying a mission over France June 2, 1944.

Edgar Blanton was always active politically and expressed his opinions forcefully in his editorials. He served as an honorary colonel on the staff of Gov. Phil Donnelly and likes to recall that President Harry Truman once sat in the editor's chair at the Democrat office and put his feet on Blanton's desk.

One of the highlights of the 70-year newspaper career was the visit of the Today Show, an NBC television production, to the Democrat. Filmed by Paul Cunningham, a member of the Today staff, in September 1961, the show featured segments of a football game, an interview with Blanton and a demonstration of how news stories were gathered and written for a community newspaper.

Although the Democrat was the youngest Blanton newspaper in terms of ownership and editing, it was an established business long before Blanton took over. One of the oldest newspapers in Missouri, it was established in 1868 by Samuel Rawlings.

When Blanton purchased the paper, he became the first third-generation Blanton to become a publisher. He was fortunate at the time he entered the business not to have immediate competition in Shelbina, but he survived two attempts to establish The Shelbina News in the late 1930s, each one of which lasted only a short time.

In his 49 years as editor and publisher of the Democrat, Blanton reported and commented on three wars, a depression, numerous periods of recession, murders, births, deaths, weddings and life in general in a small Missouri town. Today much of his writing in "Your Editor Speaks Out' brings back the past as seen by a country editor. His lengthy career, from paper boy to publisher emeritus, has earned him a place in Missouri letters.

Bell celebrates birthday

Bell Telephone Laboratories celebrates a birthday this month.

Responsible for research, development and design of telecommunications services offered by the Bell System, the laboratories division was founded in 1925. Today, 50 years and 17,000 patents later, it is one of the largest industrial laboratories in the world.

A partial list of other Labs accomplishments includes:

The first high-fidelity recording (1925); sound motion pictures (1926); long distance television transmission (1927); the negative feedback amplifier (1927); coaxial cable carrier system (1929); radio astronomy (1933); first electrical relay-type digital computer (1938); information theory (1940s).

Microwave radio relay system (1948); the silicon solar cell (1954); the first transoceanic telephone cable (1956); the gas laser (1960); satellite communications (1962); Picturephone set (1964); magnetic bubbles (1966); charge-coupled devices (1969); and low-loss optical fibers (1974).

Commenting on the half-century landmark, W. O. Baker, Bell Labs president, said, "The first 50 years with all its achievements becomes now mainly a basis for high expectations."

that he cannot function without drug support.

A new type of drug abuser has emerged in the past few years that makes up the fourth group -- the "hippies." These drug users tend to believe that the systems of today are either antiquated or wrong, and a new way of life should be found. Drugs are an integral part of the hippie life, and they could be considered the same as the "hard-core" abusers. The major difference is that most hippies do not come from the slum areas, but from middle or upper-middle income families and their educational level is far above that of the ghetto dweller.

Obviously, there is much overlapping of these groups, and a spree or situational user may deteriorate to the hard-core group or become enmeshed in the hippie philosophy. The transition occurs when the interaction between drug effects and a personality causes a loss of control over drug use. To the user, the drug becomes a means of solving or avoiding life's problems.

Daily Standard investigators have been in contact with all four during the nine-month study. Drug parties have served as good examples of all four classes being present.

During the probe by the newspaper, investigators have made buys of drugs from numerous areas of the Bootheel and have viewed other persons purchasing illegal drugs. All of this information is currently under investigation by state drug officials.

The goal of this series of articles has been to benefit the readers and assist in easing the problem of drug abuse by turning over the confidential information obtained to the proper authorities.

Election dates set by council

CHARLESTON — The City Council Tuesday night adopted ordinances officially setting dates of the city's primary and general elections and discussed construcvtion of a new swimming pool.

One position on the City Council for a three-year term is to be filled in the April 1 general election. If more than two candidates file, a primary election will be necessary on March 18.

A decision on whether to build a new swimming pool as tabled until a later meeting when a full council could be present. Councilmen Wyman Beasley and William Knight were absent.

Councilman Sam Story informed the other members that he had met with a representative of a Memphis, Tenn., swimming pool construction firm. After the old pool was inspected, he said it was proposed that another pool be built inside the existing pool.

If this is done, Story said the new pool would only be a foot smaller in length and width. An estimate of $48,260 for the project was submitted by the firm. This would not include remodeling of dressing room facilities.

Story said the company would build a pool at another loction or at the present site at an estimated cost of $12.50 per square foot, provided the city tears down the present facility. This price would include plumbing, filtration system, automatic chlorination and other installations.

A resolution authorizing City Manager Willis Downs to submit an application for recertification of the city's workable program to the Department of Housing and Urban Development as approved.

Also approved was a contract with Everett Beldin of East Prairie Route One for rural fire protection.

Following an executive session, the meeting was adjourned until 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday. At that time, bids for construction of water improvements are to be opened.

City may revise anti-obscenity code

Sikeston is considering revising its anti-obscenity ordinance to keep it in line with Supreme Court decisions, City Attorney Manuel Drumm told a group of people Tuesday who expressed concern over the availability of what they consider to be obscene magazines.

The group, consisting of housewives and local ministers, had requested a meeting with city officials to see what could be done about removing the magazines from display shelves in town. Members of the group said they are concerned that children can easily look through the magazines on the shelves.

Drumm told the group the wording of the present ordinance may not be constitutional. The city's present ordinance bans obscene, immoral, lewd, licentious language, pictures or descriptions.

Drumm told the group that defining what is obscene is difficult. He waid it is easy for someone to say what he thinks is obscene, but to write down an ordinance that is constitutional is much more difficult.

One of the problems, he said, is that the definition of obscenity shifts a little every time the Supreme Court hands down a decision.

Drumm told the group the city is considering adopting an ordinance similar to the one adopted by Kansas City. That ordinances says the definition of obscenity is whatever the Supreme Court has defined as obscene on the day of the arrest.

Charles Stamp, Drumm's law partner and assistant city attorney, said today one of the problems with writing obscenity ordinances in the past has been that by the time one is written, its no longer constitutional because the court has shifted its position again.

The court recently said that local cities may decide on their own definition of what is obscene. But when a city in Georgia banned the movie, "Carnal ..Knowledge", the court retreated on its decision.

No one knows what the extent of local option is, Stamp said.

Members of the group said they would consider petitions and personal contact with merchants in an attempt to get the magazines off the display shelves.

that he cannot function without drug support.

A new type of drug abuser has emerged in the past few years that makes up the fourth group -- the "hippies." These drug users tend to believe that the systems of today are either antiquated or wrong, and a new way of life should be found. Drugs are an integral part of the hippie life, and they could be considered the same as the "hard-core" abusers. The major difference is that most hippies do not come from the slum areas, but from middle or upper-middle income families and their educational level is far above that of the ghetto dweller.

Obviously, there is much overlapping of these groups, and a spree or situational user may deteriorate to the hard-core group or become enmeshed in the hippie philosophy. The transition occurs when the interaction between drug effects and a personality causes a loss of control over drug use. To the user, the drug becomes a means of solving or avoiding life's problems.

Daily Standard investigators have been in contact with all four during the nine-month study. Drug parties have served as good examples of all four classes being present.

During the probe by the newspaper, investigators have made buys of drugs from numerous areas of the Bootheel and have viewed other persons purchasing illegal drugs. All of this information is currently under investigation by state drug officials.

The goal of this series of articles has been to benefit the readers and assist in easing the problem of drug abuse by turning over the confidential information obtained to the proper authorities.

Election dates set by council

CHARLESTON — The City Council Tuesday night adopted ordinances officially setting dates of the city's primary and general elections and discussed construcvtion of a new swimming pool.

One position on the City Council for a three-year term is to be filled in the April 1 general election. If more than two candidates file, a primary election will be necessary on March 18.

A decision on whether to build a new swimming pool as tabled until a later meeting when a full council could be present. Councilmen Wyman Beasley and William Knight were absent.

Councilman Sam Story informed the other members that he had met with a representative of a Memphis, Tenn., swimming pool construction firm. After the old pool was inspected, he said it was proposed that another pool be built inside the existing pool.

If this is done, Story said the new pool would only be a foot smaller in length and width. An estimate of $48,260 for the project was submitted by the firm. This would not include remodeling of dressing room facilities.

Story said the company would build a pool at another loction or at the present site at an estimated cost of $12.50 per square foot, provided the city tears down the present facility. This price would include plumbing, filtration system, automatic chlorination and other installations.

A resolution authorizing City Manager Willis Downs to submit an application for recertification of the city's workable program to the Department of Housing and Urban Development as approved.

Also approved was a contract with Everett Beldin of East Prairie Route One for rural fire protection.

Following an executive session, the meeting was adjourned until 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday. At that time, bids for construction of water improvements are to be opened.

Panthers prevail

LILBOURN — Coach Bob Phelps LHS Panthers reached the 20 victory plateau Tuesday night, but not before having thoughts of their winning streak coming to an end, as North Pemiscot forced the defending class 2A state champions into two overtimes before rolling up their 31st straight victory,79-75.

A capacity crowd was on hand to view the shootout which matched the state's top rated 2A quintet (LHS) against the third ranked (NPHS) 1A club. Both teams were in the same class last season, but a drop in enrollment at the Wardell school dropped the Mustangs to the lower class.

North Pemiscot, who was the last team to defeat the Panthers, fell behind by as much as seven points early in the contest but battled back to take a lead themselves and set the tempo of the see saw battle.

The run and gun contest, once referred to by former Panther coach and 1974 Daily Standard Coach of the Year, Larry Warren, as "Shoot--- Holler and Foller" featured the Panthers 30 foot shooting accuracy against the Mustangs rebound power and percentage shooting.

But it was LHS's Archie Boyd who displayed the rebound and percentage shot with around 16 seconds left in the second overtime that decided the game. Boyd grabbed off a rebound and shoved it through the goal for the winning margin. Det Treadwell hit a shot at the buzzer after a steal to give the Panthers their four point spread.

Ernest McFerren, LHS's floor general, drilled in 25 points to lead the offensive assault while all-stater Frankie Robinson contributed 22 markers. Robinsons steals and rebounding played a key role in the eventual outcome, not to mention the assists of the6-foot-1 junior forward.

Richard Hursey hit a 20 foot at the buzzer for North Pemiscot to send the game into overtime after McFerren put the hosts ahead by sinking a pair of free throws.

North Pemiscot matched the Panthers goal for goal in the overtime periods until Jerry Stewart, the Mustangs floor general, fouled out with 2:11 left in the second three minute period. From that point the Mustangs ran into numerous floor mistakes, the last errand passcosting themthe victory.

Hursey paced a five player double figure offense of coach David McMahon's, who's team dropped only their second game of the season. Both have been at the hands of the powerful Panthers.

Lilbourn's junior varsity tipped off the night's hardwood action with a 56-28 victory behind the 14 point leadership of Ramon Willis.

Lilbourn faces another key test Feb 14 when the Kelly Hawks visit thefriendly confines of the Panthers den, which could be a preview of the regional finals at Scott City later this month.

Notre Dame turns back rival CCHS

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Notre Dame Bulldogs defeated the Cape Central Tigers for the second time this season in their rivalry, 63-58, but this time it took three extra minutes.

Mark Beussink of Notre Dame and Stan Ray of Cape Central hooked up in a scoring duel with Beussink coming out on top 26-25.

Frankie boy's form

All-Stater Frankie Robinson (24) shows off his form as he prepares to launch a shot from the deep corner against the North Pemiscot Mustangs Tuesday night. Robinson scored 22 points, mostly from the 30 foot range as LHS ran their streak to 31 straight games over two seasons.

Presley puts on show

By DALE FORBIS

Sporting a new-look defense and benefitting from an outstanding performance from Hal Presley, the Sikeston Bulldogs ended their three-game losing streak Tuesday night, 76-68, at the expense of the Jackson Indians.

Presley scored 22 second half points, and grabbed 13 rebounds to help the Bulldogs protect a precarious lead that hovered between three and five points the entire second half. The 6-foot-4 forward's 30 total points were followed by 14 from Vangalee West, who had an outstanding floor game and came away with six steals. Russ Wissman, giving Sikeston a hot outside hand over the Jackson zone early in the game, joined Mark Eaves in the scoring column at 11. Rick Law led the Indians with 21, 14 of them in the first half.

Sikeston coach Buddy Spears said early in the year, "We will live or die by our defense," and in a tough month of January against top-flight opposition the Bulldogs had done just that --- died. The Bulldog man-to-man defense proved to be inadequate (Sikeston currently is allowing over 73 points per game), and several good team shooting performances were wasted by a timid, and impotent defense. The clincher was a week ago when Charleston outmuscled and outquicked the struggling Sikeston team enroute to a 78-58 win in the Poplar Bluff tournament.

Against the Indians Sikeston came out in a 1-3-1 zone ... a defense that is hard to work, but a defense that is also hard to beat hwen it is worked right. Well, either the Bulldogs worked it right or Jackson was shooting poorly, as they hit only 32 percent. The Bulldogs on the other hand, facing a 1-3-1 zone also, had their shooting problems as well, connecting on just 42 percent. Rebounding and the hosts' superior quickness were factors that enabled Sikeston to run its record nearer the 500 mark at 7-10.

Sikeston was missing shots it normally hits, but the defensive effort was a good one. An encouraging note for fans that had just about given up on a team that showed so much early promise. The new zone gets a real test this Thursday night when the Bulldogs host the tough Dexter Bearcats. Dexter, with a record of 15-5, earlier beat SHS 67-62 in the Bloomfield Christmas tournament. Sikeston will need the win to even its conference record. The mark now stands at 1-2.

LHS claimed their 20th win of the season and 31st straight over two campaigns while handing the Mustangs their second defeat of the season.

JV uses balance to claim victory

Paul Gilbow, Curtis Sales and Alonzo Harris used their strength inside to carry the Sikeston Bulldogs JV to a 66-50 victory over Jackson here Tuesday night.

Paul Gilbow scored 14 points, mostly on tipins, Sales fired in 14 points, most of them coming in the opening minutes of the first period and Harris scored 16 points. Eddie Lynch scored 12 to lead the Jackson JV.

Local stars tackle 'Red Heads'

By DALE LEWIS

It's here at last! The BASKETBALL GAME OF THE YEAR!

Tonight, beneath the impressive steel framework of the Sikeston Senior High Fieldhouse dome, a wide assortment of paunchy, middle-aged, baldpated ex-joggers will reveal their basketball talents to the baleful eyes of TV cameras, hometown fans, and Moore's All-American Red Heads, winners of 173 out of 203 games played last year.

Basketball is her game and Lynette Sjoquist is the name. The Arkansas Red Head beauty, better known to her teammates as "Totem Pole", will display her talents at the SHS fieldhouse tonight in a game against a city all-star team made up of teachers and local businessmen. Game time is 8 p.m.

For the uninformed, it's a "liberated" basketball encounter between a bunch of city businessmen and teachers and a group of professional barnstorming gals who are somewhat of a women's version of the Harlem Globetrotters.

The tartan-court action between these two tonight should provide excitement reminescent of "Custer's Last Stand" or "The Charge of the Light Brigade".

The All-American Red Heads, coached by Charlotte Adams, come into this evening's game in perfect condition, their six-foot-and-over frames poised for another victory in the greatest women-libber's tradition.

According to advance scouting reports, one feature of the Red Heads' game plan may be to "talk the guys to death on the court." And if that fails, the gals are expected to reveal their "dynamic passion" for playing skillful basketball by doing their "Southern Cross" routine, whatever that is.

Warning lights were also posted for the gals' "1-3-1 zone man-trap defense", better known as the "Crimson Pride". Details regarding this maneuver were unavailable.

The starting line-up for the All-American Red Heads reeks of sure-fire success for the wandering wizards. Their "Good Humor Kid", Rhonda Waters, is more colorful than the rainbow and has more tricks than a bridge deck. "Referee baitin' " is her stock-in-trade, along with a fair eye for the basket. Lynnes Sjoquist, center for the Red Heads along with her twin, Lynette, spell double disaster for the City All-Stars with strong, rugged play. Jump-shot artist and "Miss Defense" for the "Crimson Pride" is Wanda "Wonderful" England, also long on offensive talent with super passing, drive shots, and ball-handling. An Arkansas gal, Linda Shanks, is one of the top scorers for the girls with an uncanny hook shot. She can also get "the jump" on most any opponent. Top that line-up with "Freshman Star" Barbara Hestert anf Champion foul-shooter Nancy Malone and the "Whiz Kids" are off and dazzling all night long.

On the other side of the ledger lay our City All-stars, uncoached but enthusiastic, and seemingly non-chalant about the whole thing. But a usually reliable source says there have been some "closed-door" strategy sessions this past week in various secretive locations about town. Our "Watergate" expert also "leaked" a sneak preview at the guys game plan, supposedly having the newest look in basketball since the peach basket lost its bottom.

Instead of the usual two guards, post-man, and two forwards set-up, the City All-Stars will feature a "Five-Forward" look, with two "Most Forwards", two "Top Forwards", and one "Least Forward". The spark-plug of this "offensive" unit is expected to be Harley Barnes, who boasts the team's highest age and quickest wit, if not the fastest shot.

"Our Guys Gang" will defense the redheaded gals with a "man-to-women" full-court press, hopefully causing the turnover for a fast break down court using their newly developed "forward" and "curve" passing techniques. Our sneaky observer overheard one player commenting that "this will probably result in too many errant "passes" being made at-to the Red Heads.

Taking a quick run-down of the other City All-Stars, we see Bill Waltrip and Mike Couch in charge of the city's "reserves". BRob "The Traveler" Mitchell will do back-stop duty and be the team's insuraance. Ken Masterson should have the "legalities" of the game down pat by play time. Ron Jaynes and Don Fulton have volunteered to "keep" the scorebook. Mike Foster, Larry Nickell, Terry Smith, and Murray Sullivan lost out on bench duty and will do "The Iron-men" chores. And a special feature will be the "Four Musketeers" in the forms of Ford Morgan, Duane Schindler, Lee Shell, Mike Couch, and Terry Coleman.

Therein sets the stage, folks, and the players are ready and a night of good fun is in store. Game time is 8 p.m. at the Sikeston Senior High Fieldhouse. Come on out and join the riot.

Panthers prevail

LILBOURN — Coach Bob Phelps LHS Panthers reached the 20 victory plateau Tuesday night, but not before having thoughts of their winning streak coming to an end, as North Pemiscot forced the defending class 2A state champions into two overtimes before rolling up their 31st straight victory,79-75.

A capacity crowd was on hand to view the shootout which matched the state's top rated 2A quintet (LHS) against the third ranked (NPHS) 1A club. Both teams were in the same class last season, but a drop in enrollment at the Wardell school dropped the Mustangs to the lower class.

North Pemiscot, who was the last team to defeat the Panthers, fell behind by as much as seven points early in the contest but battled back to take a lead themselves and set the tempo of the see saw battle.

The run and gun contest, once referred to by former Panther coach and 1974 Daily Standard Coach of the Year, Larry Warren, as "Shoot--- Holler and Foller" featured the Panthers 30 foot shooting accuracy against the Mustangs rebound power and percentage shooting.

But it was LHS's Archie Boyd who displayed the rebound and percentage shot with around 16 seconds left in the second overtime that decided the game. Boyd grabbed off a rebound and shoved it through the goal for the winning margin. Det Treadwell hit a shot at the buzzer after a steal to give the Panthers their four point spread.

Ernest McFerren, LHS's floor general, drilled in 25 points to lead the offensive assault while all-stater Frankie Robinson contributed 22 markers. Robinsons steals and rebounding played a key role in the eventual outcome, not to mention the assists of the6-foot-1 junior forward.

Richard Hursey hit a 20 foot at the buzzer for North Pemiscot to send the game into overtime after McFerren put the hosts ahead by sinking a pair of free throws.

North Pemiscot matched the Panthers goal for goal in the overtime periods until Jerry Stewart, the Mustangs floor general, fouled out with 2:11 left in the second three minute period. From that point the Mustangs ran into numerous floor mistakes, the last errand passcosting themthe victory.

Hursey paced a five player double figure offense of coach David McMahon's, who's team dropped only their second game of the season. Both have been at the hands of the powerful Panthers.

Lilbourn's junior varsity tipped off the night's hardwood action with a 56-28 victory behind the 14 point leadership of Ramon Willis.

Lilbourn faces another key test Feb. 14 when the Kelly Hawks visit thefriendly confines of the Panthers den, which could be a preview of the regional finals at Scott City later this month.

Notre Dame turns back rival CCHS

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Notre Dame Bulldogs defeated the Cape Central Tigers for the second time this season in their rivalry, 63-58, but this time it took three extra minutes.

Mark Beussink of Notre Dame and Stan Ray of Cape Central hooked up in a scoring duel with Beussink coming out on top 26-25.

Presley puts on show

By DALE FORBIS

Sporting a new-look defense and benefitting from an outstanding performance from Hal Presley, the Sikeston Bulldogs ended their three-game losing streak Tuesday night, 76-68, at the expense of the Jackson Indians.

Presley scored 22 second half points, and grabbed 13 rebounds to help the Bulldogs protect a precarious lead that hovered between three and five points the entire second half. The 6-foot-4 forward's 30 total points were followed by 14 from Vangalee West, who had an outstanding floor game and came away with six steals. Russ Wissman, giving Sikeston a hot outside hand over the Jackson zone early in the game, joined Mark Eaves in the scoring column at 11. Rick Law led the Indians with 21, 14 of them in the first half.

Sikeston coach Buddy Spears said early in the year, "We will live or die by our defense," and in a tough month of January against top-flight opposition the Bulldogs had done just that --- died. The Bulldog man-to-man defense proved to be inadequate (Sikeston currently is allowing over 73 points per game), and several good team shooting performances were wasted by a timid, and impotent defense. The clincher was a week ago when Charleston outmuscled and outquicked the struggling Sikeston team enroute to a 78-58 win in the Poplar Bluff tournament.

Against the Indians Sikeston came out in a 1-3-1 zone ... a defense that is hard to work, but a defense that is also hard to beat hwen it is worked right. Well, either the Bulldogs worked it right or Jackson was shooting poorly, as they hit only 32 percent. The Bulldogs on the other hand, facing a 1-3-1 zone also, had their shooting problems as well, connecting on just 42 percent. Rebounding and the hosts' superior quickness were factors that enabled Sikeston to run its record nearer the 500 mark at 7-10.

Sikeston was missing shots it normally hits, but the defensive effort was a good one. An encouraging note for fans that had just about given up on a team that showed so much early promise. The new zone gets a real test this Thursday night when the Bulldogs host the tough Dexter Bearcats. Dexter, with a record of 15-5, earlier beat SHS 67-62 in the Bloomfield Christmas tournament. Sikeston will need the win to even its conference record. The mark now stands at 1-2.

JV uses balance to claim victory

Paul Gilbow, Curtis Sales and Alonzo Harris used their strength inside to carry the Sikeston Bulldogs JV to a 66-50 victory over Jackson here Tuesday night.

Sikeston took a 20-9 first period lead but slacked up in the second and third period and allowed Jackson to get within six before coming alive again in the fourth period to win the game.

Paul Gilbow scored 14 points, mostly on tipins, Sales fired in 14 points, most of them coming in the opening minutes of the first period and Harris scored 16 points. Eddie Lynch scored 12 to lead the Jackson JV.

All-Stater Frankie Robinson (24) shows off his form as he prepares to launch a shot from the deep corner against the North Pemiscot Mustangs Tuesday night. Robinson scored 22 points, mostly from the 30 foot range as LHS ran their streak to 31 straight games over two seasons.

Rebound power

Ray Norris (45) scored 14 p oints and pulled down over 20 rebounds for the North Pemiscot Mustangs Tuesday night in their unsuccessful bid to upset the Lilbourn Panthers. LHS claimed their 20th win of the season and 31st straight over two campaigns while handing the Mustangs their second defeat of the season.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Nutrition 'Quacks' Notwithstanding

Lecithin Won't Cut Cholesterol

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Some time ago you wrote in your column that the scientists recommended that heart patients eat no more than three egg yolks per week. Yet in a popular food book the author says that there is enough lecithin in an egg yolk to destroy the cholesterol in it and we've read this in other articles too. Now just who is right?

Dear Reader — I'm afraid the lady who wrote the book you referred to is not in step with the scientific community or the rest of the medical profession that is concerned with heart and vascular disease. In fact, three of her books are on the "not recommended" list prepared by the Chicago Nutrition Assn.

I continually get questions about lecithin "breaking up the fat" or "neutralizing the cholesterol" and other such statements. Egg yolks do contain lecithin. Lecithin is one type of fatty acid. Originally it was hoped that it would help to improve solubility of the fatty particles in the bloodstream and thereby prevent atherosclerosis.

Dedicated scientists have evaluated this problem rather carefully in hopes to achieve this. The results of carefully designed experiments have established clearly that the addition of lecithin and like products to the diet will not lower the blood cholesterol, it will not dissolve the fats in the bloodstream and most specifically it will not prevent atherosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries, that leads to heart disease and strokes. Publications that state to the contrary do not have the stamp of approval by the scientific community and the statements are not supported by competent scientific investigation.

I personally telephoned Dr. Jeremiah Stamler in Chicago who has been one of the pioneer research investigators in this area and with others carried out a great deal of the research of lecithin and related substances. I have also discussed this specific point with the medical director of the American Heart Assn. The results of careful research have been published in scientific literature and are available to, and known to, the medical profession. Scientists in the American Heart Assn. and other scientific organizations do not feel that the presence of lecithin in the egg yolk or the use of lecithin in health food tablets or from any other source provides any meaningful answer to the problem of atherosclerosis. This is true regardless of enthusiastic articles in popular magazines published without the approval of the scientific community.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Please tell me what foods are rich in potassium for someone with a potassium deficiency.

Dear Reader — In general the fruits are rich in potassium although there are many other sources of potassium in the foods we eat anyway. It's more difficult to design a diet to be free of potassium than it is to add potassium to the diet. One of the sources I usually recommend is orange juice.

Ordinance prohibits gambling

PORTAGEVILLE — The City Council Monday night passed an ordinance prohibiting any types of games of chance to be installed on premises in the city where liquor is consumed or sold by the package, according to City Clerk Raymond Secoy.

Secoy said the ordinance prohibiting gambling devices provides that no billiard table, pool table, shuffle board, card or dice table or any other game of chance that could be ued for gambling will be allowed where liquor is sold or consumed by the packaage.

The council approved an ordinance naming a street Foster Avenue that is in Foster addition, east of Bay Ditch and north of Highway 62 east.

Another ordinance designating names of streets was tabled until certain requirements have been met to officially dedicate the streets.

The council also approved an ordinance regulating speed limits on city streets.

They discussed hiring three men under the federally funded Public Jobs Program, but no action was taken until additional information regulating the employment is obtained. According to Secoy, one man could be hired for five months and two men for eight months in the city's utility department.

It's a baby girl for Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Young of Lilbourn born at the Delta Community Hospital on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Suver, 730 East Kathleen street, Sikeston, are parents of a baby born Friday.

Sikeston, playing in the most aggressive contest the Bulldogs have encountered this season, copped a 72-61 decision from Charleston at the Armory Friday. And it marked the first time this year Sikeston has been able to claim a home court victory. Carlton "Joe" Rowe, the 5-10 "jumping jack," got the starting nod from Coach Garrett O'Dell and the slender lad responded with a 19 point effort against the Bluejays in addition to doing yeoman work on the boards.

Meet the Bulldogs. Abe Hunter, a 5-9 junior, is one of Sikeston's most aggressive cagers. The Bulldog usually gets the nod from Coach Garrett O'Dell when Sikeston employs a full court press.

Beatrice Wright, about 26, and mother of three small children, died of suffocation by smoke in the fire that wrecked a three apartment frame building in rear of 234 Young street, Sunday and her body was found huddled in a corner of the room.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Nutrition 'Quacks' Notwithstanding

Lecithin Won't Cut Cholesterol

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Some time ago you wrote in your column that the scientists recommended that heart patients eat no more than three egg yolks per week. Yet in a popular food book the author says that there is enough lecithin in an egg yolk to destroy the cholesterol in it and we've read this in other articles too. Now just who is right?

Dear Reader — I'm afraid the lady who wrote the book you referred to is not in step with the scientific community or the rest of the medical profession that is concerned with heart and vascular disease. In fact, three of her books are on the "not recommended" list prepared by the Chicago Nutrition Assn.

I continually get questions about lecithin "breaking up the fat" or "neutralizing the cholesterol" and other such statements. Egg yolks do contain lecithin. Lecithin is one type of fatty acid. Originally it was hoped that it would help to improve solubility of the fatty particles in the bloodstream and thereby prevent atherosclerosis.

Dedicated scientists have evaluated this problem rather carefully in hopes to achieve this. The results of carefully designed experiments have established clearly that the addition of lecithin and like products to the diet will not lower the blood cholesterol, it will not dissolve the fats in the bloodstream and most specifically it will not prevent atherosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries, that leads to heart disease and strokes. Publications that state to the contrary do not have the stamp of approval by the scientific community and the statements are not supported by competent scientific investigation.

I personally telephoned Dr. Jeremiah Stamler in Chicago who has been one of the pioneer research investigators in this area and with others carried out a great deal of the research of lecithin and related substances. I have also discussed this specific point with the medical director of the American Heart Assn. The results of careful research have been published in scientific literature and are available to, and known to, the medical profession. Scientists in the American Heart Assn. and other scientific organizations do not feel that the presence of lecithin in the egg yolk or the use of lecithin in health food tablets or from any other source provides any meaningful answer to the problem of atherosclerosis. This is true regardless of enthusiastic articles in popular magazines published without the approval of the scientific community.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Please tell me what foods are rich in potassium for someone with a potassium deficiency.

Dear Reader — In general the fruits are rich in potassium although there are many other sources of potassium in the foods we eat anyway. It's more difficult to design a diet to be free of potassium than it is to add potassium to the diet. One of the sources I usually recommend is orange juice.

Ordinance prohibits gambling

PORTAGEVILLE — The City Council Monday night passed an ordinance prohibiting any types of games of chance to be installed on premises in the city where liquor is consumed or sold by the package, according to City Clerk Raymond Secoy.

Secoy said the ordinance prohibiting gambling devices provides that no billiard table, pool table, shuffle board, card or dice table or any other game of chance that could be ued for gambling will be allowed where liquor is sold or consumed by the packaage.

The council approved an ordinance naming a street Foster Avenue that is in Foster addition, east of Bay Ditch and north of Highway 62 east.

Another ordinance designating names of streets was tabled until certain requirements have been met to officially dedicate the streets.

The council also approved an ordinance regulating speed limits on city streets.

They discussed hiring three men under the federally funded Public Jobs Program, but no action was taken until additional information regulating the employment is obtained. According to Secoy, one man could be hired for five months and two men for eight months in the city's utility department.

February 5, 1925

Morehouse--Mrs. J.V. Baker spent the weekend with Mrs. Doughty in Morley.

Matthews--Mrs. Aubrey Lurmit and little daughter and Miss Frankie Deane of New Madrid spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. G.F. Deane.

New Madrid--Mr. and Mrs. S. Manheimer entertained the following guests Sunday, it being their 20th wedding anniversary: Mrs. M. Kaufman and son, Louis Kaufman, and Mr. and Mrs. Max Kaufman, all of Parma.

Three persons were injured, one of them critically, and damage estimated at $200,000 was caused by fire which swept an entire block in the business section of Puxico, 46 miles southwest of Cape Girardeau, early Friday. Eleven buildings were destroyed by the flames. The injured were: Walter Moore, 33, chief of the Poplar Bluff fire department, seriour cuts about the head and body; Barney Leiumkuehler, 27, of Poplar Bluff, internal injuries and lacerations; and Lester Williams, 17, high school boy of Dexter, and a member of the volunteer fire department there, lacerations of his body and legs.

Bill Arnold was high man with 16 points by virtue of two converted free throws as Gene Hayden tied him in the number of field goals with seven but got no free shot at the basket.

Pvt. Gerald Crandall is on a 13-day furlough from Ft. McClellan, Ala. While here he will visit his wife and two sisters, Mrs. Orville Taylor and Mrs. Ralph Tucker.

Mr. and Mrs. C.L. Essary, Mr. and Mrs. A.R. Brannon and daughter, Margaret, recently bought a farm near Kelso and they moved there on February 1.

Letters to the Editor

The Sikeston Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Attention: Mr. Blanton

I will appreciate your running the following article in your "Letters to the Editor" column.

I AM AGAINST GAS RATIONING FOR THE FOLLOWING REASONS:

1. Gas Rationing will be the usual political "Pork-Barrel" pretense of fairness while in reality it will become a payoff for those who control the system. Those with political pull, or the "in people" will get the gas for pleasure-hunting, fishing and frolic"-while the majority of the people will not have enough to get to work.

2. No matter how it is done, there will be inadequacies-The middle-income people will bear the burden of sacrifice.

3. The cost of the Gas Rationing System from the Head in Washington to the local Clerk in individual towns or cities will be another Federal Bureaucratic System that will cost the Tax Payer as much if not more than the Oil Import Taxes.

Each individual should consider what Gas Rationing will do to a Rural Area like the Missouri Bootheel and OPPOSE GAS RATIONING.

Take the time to write your Congressman. That is the only way he knows how you feel. If you don't have time to personally drop him a note, just clip this article from your copy of the paper, write your name across the top and mail it to him at the following address:

Honorable Bill D. Burlison
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, D.C., 10515

Remember-only YOU (the people) can stop this Gas Rationing by letting your voices be heard,

Yours very truly,

Vernon Goodall

January 30, 1975

Dear Editor:

Missouri Legislators will soon be debating and voting on the Equal Rights Amendment. The Amendment which simply states "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex".

Much money has come into Missouri from national feminists groups to persuade the legislators that they should pass the ERA. We believe the women of Missouri and of the nation will not be benefitted from passage of this Amendment to the Constitution, but instead will lose many precious rights they presently enjoy.

The Equal Rights Amendment would attack the integrity of the family, which heretofore has been recognized by our law and policy as basic society. A husband would be relieved of his primary duty to legally provide support for his wife and children. The Amendment would tend to force wives and mothers to work whether they want to or not. The father would legally be responsible for only one half support of the children. Professor Paul Freund of Harvard Law School has stated that forcing equality in the matter of family support, the state laws which place the primary responsibility on the husband to support his wife and children would be invalidated.

Both the proponents and opponents of ERA agree that girls will be subject to the draft and that requirements for enlistment will be the same for both sexes. Women will serve in all kinds of units and women would not be excluded on account of sex for combat roles. To quote James Kilpatrick, Syndicated Columnist, "Once the Amendment becomes effective, every 18-year old girl will have to register for the draft. These young women then must be called into service under precisely the same terms and conditions now applied to men. This means combat duty; anything less would be constitutionally impossible". It is true that Congress presently has the power to draft or exempt women from the draft, but if ERA passes, Congress can no longer exempt women.

Dr. Jonathan H. Pincus, professor of N Neurology at the Yale Medical School states, "I would predict that the Equal Rights Amendment and many of the other goals of its proponents would bring social disruption, unhappiness and increasing rates of divorce and desertion. Weakening of family ties may also lead to increase rate of alcholism, suicide, and possible sexual deviation."

We urge you to write or call your State Senator ad Representative immediately and urge him or her to vote AGAINST passage of the Equal Rights Amendment in Missouri.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Betty Hanicke

Dear Charlie,

Sikeston has been chosen to be the host for the District Wrestling tournament this year. It will be held on Feburary 7th and 8th at the Field House. We will be hosts to Cape Girardeau, Farmington and Poplar Bluff, the St. Louis schools represented will be Vianney, Fox of Arnold, Lindberg, Affton, Mehlville, Oakville, Webster Groves and Cleveland.

Our team and Coach Heacox have worked hard this year and need to have the support of the school and the community. This is a very competitive sport for each individual as well as the school. Jackson and St. Louis support wrestling and I hope Sikeston won't let our team down. The boy who places in the tournament will go to Regionals in St. Louis the following weekend. Sikeston should place quite a few boys so let's support our team!

I sincerely hope the Standard will have someone there at the tournament on Friday night and Saturday during the day to give our boys the coverage they deserve. The basketball tournaments are always well covered, the wrestling team deserves equal treatment.

Thank you for printing my letter, and we'll see you at the tournament!

THE GOVERNOR'S HUNT

As a St. Louis booster I must take strong exception to two of Gov. Bond's recommendations in his annual message to the Legislature: Construction of a new federal interstate highway from Kansas City to Chicago and expansion of Lambert Field rather than construction of a major new airport for the St. Louis area in Illinois.

It is good to know that determination of these issues is largely up to the U.S. Government, but even so, if I were a cartoonist, I would depict the Governor as a hunter stalking St. Louis with a double-barrel shotgun. The highway would bypass St. Louis, which is bad enough, but failure to build the "Gateway to the World" at Columbia Waterloo, Ill., would be catastophic to our economy.

The Governor wants to help the economy of northern Missouri; what about southern Missouri? I question the need for a new interstate highway from Kansas City to Chicago but a highway from Kansas City to Memphis would cut through the heart of this depressed region and greatly benefit southern Missouri and northeastern Arkansas.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

TO THE PUBLIC:

If you feel the same way, write your Congressman. Let your thoughts be heard.

1. I AM AGAINST THE REDUCING OF THE DEFENSE DEPARTMENT BUDGET FOR MANY REASONS. TWO OF THE MAIN REASONS ARE:-

1. In this Country's most prosperous period of growth, in the 1950 and 1960's, we developed and maintained a strong defense posture. What would we have done in the Cuban Missile crisis without a strong defense structure!

2. Congress plans to provide a modern day "WPA Make-Work System." This money could be spent in modernizing and updating our Armed Services instead of spending it on a "WPA Make-Work System."

We can do without Post Offices, Government White Elephant Buildings, and other "Make-Work" Projects.

I AM FOR A STRONG DEFENSE DEPARTMENT. Our Defense Posture must be the strongest in the world with NO EXCEPTIONS.

I do believe that Congress should thoroughly investigate the Defense Department. Any wrongdoing, malfeasor, or misuse of funds, kick backs and misuse of power should be dealt with promptly and to the full extent of the law.

Very truly yours,
Vernon Goodall

Attention: Mr. Blanton

I will appreciate your running the following article in your "Letters to the Editor" column.

I AM AGAINST GAS RATIONING FOR THE FOLLOWING REASONS:

1. Gas Rationing will be the usual political "Pork-Barrel" pretense of fairness while in reality it will become a payoff for those who control the system. Those with political pull, or the "in people" will get the gas for pleasure-hunting, fishing and frolic"-while the majority of the people will not have enough to get to work.

2. No matter how it is done, there will be inadequacies-The middle-income people will bear the burden of sacrifice.

3. The cost of the Gas Rationing System from the Head in Washington to the local Clerk in individual towns or cities will be another Federal Bureaucratic System that will cost the Tax Payer as much if not more than the Oil Import Taxes.

Each individual should consider what Gas Rationing will do to a Rural Area like the Missouri Bootheel and OPPOSE GAS RATIONING.

Take the time to write your Congressman. That is the only way he knows how you feel. If you don't have time to personally drop him a note, just clip this article from your copy of the paper, write your name across the top and mail it to him at the following address:

Honorable Bill D. Burlison
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, D.C., 10515

Remember-only YOU (the people) can stop this Gas Rationing by letting your voices be heard.

Yours very truly,

Vernon Goodall

Dear Editor:

Missouri Legislators will soon be debating and voting on the Equal Rights Amendment. The Amendment which simply states "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex".

Much money has come into Missouri from national feminists groups to persuade the legislators that they should pass the ERA. We believe the women of Missouri and of the nation will not be benefitted from passage of this Amendment to the Constitution, but instead will lose many precious rights they presently enjoy.

The Equal Rights Amendment would attack the integrity of the family, which heretofore has been recognized by our law and police as basic society. A husband would be relieved of his primary duty to legally provide support for his wife and children. The Amendment would tend to force wives and mothers to work whether they want to or not. The father would legally be responsible for only one half support of the children. Professor Paul Freund of Harvard Law School has stated that forcing equality in the matter of family support, the state laws which place the primary responsibility on the husband to support his wife and children would be invalidated.

Both the proponents and opponents of ERA agree that girls will be subject to the draft and that requirements for enlistment will be the same for both sexes. Women will serve in all kinds of units and women would not be excluded on account of sex for combat roles. To quote James Kilpatrick, Syndicated Columnist, "Once the Amendment becomes effective, every 18-year old girl will have to register for the draft. These young women then must be called into service under precisely the same terms and conditions now applied to men. This means combat duty; anything less would be constitutionally impossible". It is true that Congress presently has the power to draft or exempt women from the draft, but if ERA passes, Congress can no longer exempt women.

Dr. Jonathan H. Pincus, professor of N Neurology at the Yale Medical School states, "I would predict that the Equal Rights Amendment and many of the other goals of its proponents would bring social disruption, unhappiness and increasing rates of divorce and desertion. Weakening of family ties may also lead to increase rate of alcholism, suicide, and possible sexual deviation."

We urge you to write or call your State Senator ad Representative immediately and urge him or her to vote AGAINST passage of the Equal Rights Amendment in Missouri.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Betty Hanicke

COOKING-UP

By NADINE TOWNSEND

NEW MADRID-The recipes featured today have been selected by a sneak preview of a newly published cookbook that has just gone on sale by members of Iota Rho Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority of New Madrid and Portageville.

Titled "What's Cookin' in the Bootheel?", the 146-page spiral bound book contains sections covering appetizers, pickles and relishes; soups, salads and vegetables; meat, seafood and poultry; cakes, cookies and desserts; breads, rolls and pastries; candy, jelly and preserves; and casseroles, beverages and miscellaneous items.

All the recipes included in the book are those that have been tested and submitted by chapter members, plus favorite offerings from other good cooks in the area.

It wasn't easy to choose only a few recipes from such a wide selection of tasty dishes. So if you find these appealing, there's many more good ones in the book.

Proceedds from the sale of the cookbook finance the sorority's civic and educational service projects. The books are available from members or by contacting Jill Glaus, 601 St. Peter St., New Madrid, to reserve a copy.

Coffee Corner

By CHERIE BLANTON

All this cold weather makes a nice warm kitchen feel real good, but don't just stand there feeling good — make something good too!

Haven't eaten these cookies in years, but made them the other day and they're just as good as I remembered.

Ice Box Cookies

1 cup oleo
2 cups packed brown sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tbsp. warm water
1 cup chopped pecans
3 cups sifted flour

Dissolve baking soda in water. Cream oleo and sugar, add eggs, flour and vanilla. Now add soda mixture and then pecans. Shape on wax paper into 2 long rolls and chill overnite. (I keep dough in freezer for indefinite periods). Slice and bake on greased cookie sheet at 350 degrees for 8-10 minutes.

++

Mrs. Ed Branum called me the other day and gave me a favorite recipe of hers. The mixture can be used to make pancakes with or, can be used for muffins.

Pancake Muffins

1 egg
2 tbsp. salad oil
1 tbsp. sugar
½ tsp. baking soda
¼ tsp salt
1 cup flour
1 cup buttermilk

Mix all this together and pour onto griddle if you want pancakes, if muffins, grease a muffin tin, fill ¾ full and then drop 1 tsp. of any kind of jelly into each muffin tin and bake 350 degrees about 20-25 minutes.

+++

Here's a new and simple cake or brownie type dessert the family will love!

Heavenly Hash

Melt 1 stick butter and 1 square semi-sweet chocolate. Remov from heat and add

1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. baking powder
2 eggs
½ tsp. vanilla

Bake in a greased 13 x 9 pan at 350 degrees for 30 minutes (no longer)

Immediately spread a 7 oz. jar of marshmallow cream over top and cool.

Ice with this: 1 stick oleo and 1 square semi-sweet chocolate melted beat in 1 box powdered sugar and ¼ cup milk.

++

Going to give you a roll recipe you'll go crazy over.

1 cake yeast
½ cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
2 cups lukewarm water
1 egg
3 tbsp melted Crisco
5½ cups flour

Crumble yeast in bowl, add sugar, salt and water. Add slightly beaten egg. (Sift flour before measuring). Add 3 cups of flour and mix well. Add Crisco and rest of flour. Let sit out covered till it rises double. Punch down and put (covered) in icebox. If made that morning can be used that night.

Roll out and make into rolls, let rise again and bake 400 degrees, about 15 minutes.

Now if your family has a sweet tooth and thinks caramels rolls are about the best thing in the world try this!

Take above dough and roll out about ¼ inch thick. Melt some butter and spread over dough, then sprinkle well with sugar and cinnamon. Roll up into a long roll and slice and put in a pan and when they rise bake as above. This dough may be rolled out and then kept in refrigerator in a pan covered for as long as 3 days without hurting it, just take out and let rise before you put pan in oven(. Now, right before you bring out of oven, melt one stick oleo in a skillet, and dump in some brown sugar (about ¾ cup) and stir on medium heat until it gets thick (may have to add more sugar), and then when rolls come out pour this caramel mixture over top and serve at once — you better make lots and lots when you do this cause they go like popcorn.

COOKING-UP

By NADINE TOWNSEND

NEW MADRID-The recipes featured today have been selected by a sneak preview of a newly published cookbook that has just gone on sale by members of Iota Rho Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority of New Madrid and Portageville.

Titled "What's Cookin' in the Bootheel?", the 146-page spiral bound book contains sections covering appetizers, pickles and relishes; soups, salads and vegetables; meat, seafood and poultry; cakes, cookies and desserts; breads, rolls and pastries; candy, jelly and preserves; and casseroles, beverages and miscellaneous items.

All the recipes included in the book are those that have been tested and submitted by chapter members, plus favorite offerings from other good cooks in the area.

It wasn't easy to choose only a few recipes from such a wide selection of tasty dishes. So if you find these appealing, there's many more good ones in the book.

Proceedds from the sale of the cookbook finance the sorority's civic and educational service projects. The books are available from members or by contacting Jill Glaus, 601 St. Peter St., New Madrid, to reserve a copy.

MILLIONAIRE PIE

One third cup lemon juice
One third cup chopped maraschino cherries
One third cup chopped pecans
One third cup crushed pineaple, drained

Mix together first five ingredients. Pour into pie shell. Chill. Top with whipped cream to serve.

Beat eggs, butter and sugar with mixer for 12 minutes, then pour over graham cracker crust. Cover with sliced bananas. Cover bananas with layer of well drained crushed pineapple. Top with Cool Whip, nuts and cherries. Let set for several hours before serving.

FESTIVE CORN BAKE

Coffee Corner

By CHERIE BLANTON

All this cold weather makes a nice warm kitchen feel real good, but don't just stand there feeling good — make something good too!

Haven't eaten these cookies in years, but made them the other day and they're just as good as I remembered.

Ice Box Cookies

1 cup oleo
2 cups packed brown sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tbsp. warm water
1 cup chopped pecans
3 cups sifted flour

Dissolve baking soda in water. Cream oleo and sugar, add eggs, flour and vanilla. Now add soda mixture and then pecans. Shape on wax paper into 2 long rolls and chill overnite. (I keep dough in freezer for indefinite periods). Slice and bake on greased cookie sheet at 350 degrees for 8-10 minutes.

++

Mrs. Ed Branum called me the other day and gave me a favorite recipe of hers. The mixture can be used to make pancakes with or, can be used for muffins.

Pancake Muffins

1 egg
2 tbsp. salad oil
1 tbsp. sugar
½ tsp. baking soda
¼ tsp salt
1 cup flour
1 cup buttermilk

Mix all this together and pour onto griddle if you want pancakes, if muffins, grease a muffin tin, fill ¾ full and then drop 1 tsp. of any kind of jelly into each muffin tin and bake 350 degrees about 20-25 minutes.

+++

Here's a new and simple cake or brownie type dessert the family will love!

Heavenly Hash

Melt 1 stick butter and 1 square semi-sweet chocolate. Remov from heat and add

1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. baking powder
2 eggs
½ tsp. vanilla

Bake in a greased 13 x 9 pan at 350 degrees for 30 minutes (no longer)

Immediately spread a 7 oz. jar of marshmallow cream over top and cool.

Ice with this: 1 stick oleo and 1 square semi-sweet chocolate melted beat in 1 box powdered sugar and ¼ cup milk.

++

Going to give you a roll recipe you'll go crazy over.

1 cake yeast
½ cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
2 cups lukewarm water
1 egg
3 tbsp melted Crisco
5½ cups flour

Crumble yeast in bowl, add sugar, salt and water. Add slightly beaten egg. (Sift flour before measuring). Add 3 cups of flour and mix well. Add Crisco and rest of flour. Let sit out covered till it rises double. Punch down and put (covered) in icebox. If made that morning can be used that night.

Roll out and make into rolls, let rise again and bake 400 degrees, about 15 minutes.

Now if your family has a sweet tooth and thinks caramels rolls are about the best thing in the world try this!

Take above dough and roll out about ¼ inch thick. Melt some butter and spread over dough, then sprinkle well with sugar and cinnamon. Roll up into a long roll and slice and put in a pan and when they rise bake as above. This dough may be rolled out and then kept in refrigerator in a pan covered for as long as 3 days without hurting it, just take out and let rise before you put pan in oven(. Now, right before you bring out of oven, melt one stick oleo in a skillet, and dump in some brown sugar (about ¾ cup) and stir on medium heat until it gets thick (may have to add more sugar), and then when rolls come out pour this caramel mixture over top and serve at once — you better make lots and lots when you do this cause they go like popcorn.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE — with Major Hoople

THE FAMILY CIRCUS — By Bil Keane

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 5, the 36th day of 1975. There are 329 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1917, Mexico became a federated Republic of 28 states.

In this date — In 1782, the Spanish captured the Mediterranean island of Minorca from the British.

In 1783, Sweden recognized the independence of the United States.

In 1790, the first lawyers were admitted to practice before the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1818, the United States signed treaties of friendship with Denmark and Portugal.

In 1937, a bitter controversy began when President Franklin D. Roosevelt proposed adding six new justices to the Supreme Court.

In 1971, the U.S. Apollo 14 astronauts landed on the moon.

Ten years ago: A special White House envoy, McGeorge Bundy, arrived in Saigon to try to help form a stable South Vietnamese government to wage effective war against Communist guerrillas.

Five years ago: American fighter-bombers attacked enemy missile and gun positions in North Vietnam, knocking out two.

One year ago: President Nixon ordered a month-long freeze on diesel fuel prices in the hope of ending a strike by independent truckers.

Today's birthdays: New York Times publisher Arthur Sulzberger is 49. Baseball star Hank Aaron is 41.

Thought for today: Keep your eyes wide open before marriage, and half-shut afterwards. — Benjamin Franklin, 1706-1790.
